LETTER DECLARES

ADVANCE ON MEXICO CITY MARCH 1

WOMAN ATTACKS CHARLES ST. JAIL

RUSHING ARMS TO MEXICO

MEXICO CITY, Feb. 5.—The biggest military operations yet witnessed in Mexico are coming as a result of the lifting of the embargo on arms by the United States, and it is generally believed that the war will be rushed to an early conclusion.

It is predicted that the united rebel armies will begin their advance upon the capital about March 1.

The Mexican government is reported to have placed rush orders for ammunition in the United States. Friends of Huerta claim that he is determined to show the American Government that he is master of the situation. The Federal armies are to be increased by 50,000 men.

The rebels, at the same time, have placed orders for 4,000,000 rounds of ammunition in the United States. The first load of munitions to be imported by the rebels, consisting of 37,000 rounds, was taken across the International bridge from El Paso yesterday.

General Villa, at Chihuahua, has issued a proclamation granting amnesty to all Federal soldiers who desert Huerta and enroll themselves under the Constitutionalist flag before February 14.

President Huerta today pledged himself and his government to the protection of foreigners, especially Americans, and foreign owned property in Mexico. This guarantee was called forth by reports of impending anti-foreign violence due to the lifting of the embargo on arms.

HUERTA'S STATEMENT.

President Huerta's statement follows:

I have just issued orders to the leaders of the Federal army and the chiefs of the different departments of government here for drastic military operations to be begun against those destroying not only the property of the nation, but that owned by individuals both natives and foreigners in the States of So-

Rumor Curley Will Soon Give Up Seat

The report was persistently circulated about City Hall today that Mayor Curley is about to resign as a member of Congress within a day or two. Mayor Curley declined to discuss the report. It is nevertheless believed to be true.

Somebody in Alabama, opposed to Captain Richard Pearson Hobson, has discovered an old statute prohibiting the payment of congressional salaries when the congressman is absent from Washington for any reason other than sickness.

Decies Raps Tango; Defends Militants

ST. LOUIS, Feb. 5.—English suffragettes are justified in their militancy, according to Lord Decies, husband of Vivian Gould, who passed through here today. "Otherwise," he said, "their cause would receive no recognition." In regard to the new dances Lord Decies said some were good and some bad, but that he did not think much of the tango.

DEMANDS PROBE OF QUINN RULE

Sensational charges—including the deaths of young women inmates from neglect—are made regarding Charles street jail by a woman who writes to City Councilman James A. Watson.

The letter to Councilman Watson, which was made public today, was written on superior stationery. The handwriting is good. The wording of the letter is forcible. The writer frankly says she was recently an inmate of the jail, and that she deems it wise to withhold her own names. She gives, however, the name of "Annie Perkins," through whom any communication may be forwarded to her at the Allston general delivery.

The writer charges that:

A young woman died in the padded cell of the jail "from" cruel, heartless neglect, from want of a doctor and proper treatment.

Another young woman died that same night from an alleged lack of care, after being in the padded cell.

Women are forbidden even to speak to one another in the jail.

Threats of the padded cell, dry bread and cold water are made by the matrons.

The rules and regulations make for graft and ill-treatment.

There is "no greater Hell" than the Charles street jail.

Councilman Watson made charges against Sheriff Quinn before the old City Council, alleging lack of exercise and lack of segregation of prisoners. The councilman says he will renew his charges at the meeting of the council next Monday.

WAS INMATE HERSELF.

The letter received by Councilman Watson today is as follows:

Your reply to Sheriff Quinn's "Defence of Conditions at County Jail" has attracted my attention.

Having lately been an inmate of the Charles street jail, I would say that this institution certainly needs to be most rigidly investigated and I am glad you are taking the stand you are in the matter. The following are only some of the facts which many of the prisoners would vouch for had they the opportunity:

On December 24, 1913, a young woman died in a padded cell from cruel, heartless neglect; from the want of a doctor and proper treatment. Her case was one for the hospital, not a prison. The attending physician in this institution is unfeeling and almost inhuman, and his replies to prisoners who are ill, bespeak a man with neither heart nor conscience.

Another young woman on the same date as the above was removed from her padded cell, the officials knowing she had to rise and fearing lest their inhumanity might leak out. She died that same night. It was said by the prisoners that this girl died also from lack of care. One of these women was suffering from delirium tremens, the other from morphine. Their screams echoed day and night through the prison until death released one and the other was removed.

How would Sheriff Quinn explain these conditions, and how would he account for the only care these women received coming from the other prisoners?

There is no greater hell than is to be found in the institution on Charles street, which Mr. John Quinn has charge of. Women

ARDENT LOVE NOTES IN BORDEN GIRL'S $500,000 HEART SUIT

Monica T. Borden, who charges Eduardo Pallasin Guinle, a wealthy Brazilian, made spirited love to her, agreed to marry her and then refused.

NEW YORK, Feb. 5.—A handful of love letters no ardent they fairly sizzle became public today in connection with Monica T. Borden's $500,000 damage suit against Eduardo Pallasin Guinle, a Brazilian who is worth—take it from Miss Borden—$5,000,000.

Guinle was taken in custody and held in $50,000 bail for fear he should flee the country. His attorney, Paul R. Gordon, said: "Mr. Guinle will be there with bells on when it comes to giving the answer to this suit. Our answer will be even more surprising and interesting than Miss Borden's charges."

Miss Borden declares that she first met Guinle in May, 1913, and a month later he told her his love for her was such that he could not live without her.

Before sailing she received a letter written from the Hotel Knickerbocker, which read:

"I ADORE YOU."

My Darling and Sweet Mona—I am crazy. I do not know what to do without you. I have been crying since you left me alone without a soul to console me. You are the only woman I ever loved in my life. I am willing to do anything for you. Come to me and I am sure I will make you happy.

Darling, you are my love, my soul, my life. I adore you, darling.

O. GUINLE.

After her arrival in Europe Miss Borden says she received cable messages from Guinle and on her return he was at the pier to meet her.

Miss Borden declares that October 15 she told Guinle he must cease his courtship, whereupon he promptly proposed that they be married without further delay. She put him off until next day, when he renewed his protestations and was accepted. Another letter he wrote about this time would indicate that there was some lover's spat. This letter reads:

My Darling and Sweet Mona—Why do you hate me? You are my only love and joy. I love you better than myself. I am yours forever.

O. GUINLE.

"I could not live without your dear face and wonderful personality," Guinle wrote in another letter.

According to Miss Borden, she and Guinle arranged with Fr. Sheridan at the parish house of the Church of Our Lady of Lourdes for their marriage.

BOUGHT TROUSSEAU.

The banns were published and she purchased her trousseau, but January 14 Guinle told her that he had received a cablegram from his mother objecting to his marriage.

"Even after he received this message," Miss Borden continued, "he told me at the Hotel Ansonia, where he lived, that no matter what happened we would be married."

Miss Borden tells how liberal Guinle had promised during courtship that he would be after marriage. They had expected to go to Paris to live and she was to have $50,000 a year for housekeeping expenses. She also had expected to wear jewelry worth a king's ransom, which he was to have given her.

Miss Borden is twenty-three years old. She lives with her father, mother and sister, Miss Violet Borden, in Grove Hall Court, No. 668 Riverside Drive.

BRYAN STOPS JAP EXCLUSION TALK IN HOUSE

WASHINGTON, Feb. 5.—Definite and final refusal on the part of the Wilson administration to consider any Asiatic exclusion legislation during the present Congress, was the burden of the statement given to the House Immigration Committee today by Secretary of State Bryan.

For more than an hour he set forth to the members of the committee, under oath of secrecy, the relations existing and the possible future complications between the United States and Japan, and called upon the members of the committee to refuse to consider in any way the Raker bill or similar exclusion measures.

Chairman Burnett of the committee appeared much elated at the effect of Bryan's talk. None of the members except Representative Raker appeared to have the slightest doubt that the agitation of the Asiatic question was killed. The secretary is understood to have told the committee that the United States is in no condition to arouse the jingoes of Japan and that it was merely the part of common sense and patriotism to accomplish exclusion by maintaining the present gentlemen's agreement until the present sentiment in Japan should change. In this view the majority of the committee concurred.

Bryan is reported to have told the committee members that he was certain to reach an agreement with Japan on the issues raised by the California alien land law if no new obstacle to such a settlement be created, by Congress. He said he was on the best possible terms with the Japanese Ambassador, and had every reason to think that negotiations now pending would remove any possible cloud which might rest on the friendship between the American and Japanese people.

Florence Lawlor Found in Chicago

MOTHER OF MISSING GIRL IS CHEERED BY NEW HOSPITAL CLEW

Eleanor Arlin's lonely old mother, up in the little town of Colebrook, has received a letter with word that her daughter is confined in a private sanitarium near Boston. This news today gave new spirit to the search that for four weeks has utterly failed to find any clew to the girl's disappearance.

GONE JUST FOUR WEEKS.

It is just four weeks today since Miss Arlin left her boarding house on Marion street, Brookline, to mail some letters. She vanished then as completely as though she had never existed, and each new clew has proved fruitless.

But the letter to the mother—though it was anonymous—bore such marks of truth that Mrs. Arlin is almost convinced. And today, with new hope as a result of the news, she issued an appeal to all New England. "Find her—find her," she begged, "for the reward already offered. I am sure that the prayers of a broken-hearted mother."

The writer of the anonymous letter said that he is positive the girl is in a sanitarium near his home. He added that he is investigating, and that as soon as he has proved beyond a doubt the facts are as he has stated them, he will give more complete information.

BELIEVE STORY PLAUSIBLE.

The girl's friends today accepted the sanitarium story as a possibility. Miss Arlin was of a peculiar mental turn, and the possibility that she became nervously unbalanced has been entertained from the first.

One friend said today: "Eleanor was a troubling introspective girl. She may have foreseen her own breakdown. If she did it is entirely possible that she voluntarily went to a sanitarium and asked for treatment. This might explain her presence in one, if the letter Mrs. Arlin has received turns out to be reliable."

Mrs. Jane Arlin, the girl's mother, said after hearing a reporter the anonymous letter:

"I am sure she is alive. I am sure she is either held a prisoner in some

NATALIE FORBES LEAVES HOME AND BREAKS ENGAGEMENT

Miss Natalie Forbes, who breaks engagement to wed Washington society man and leaves home, it is said, to go on stage as a dancer.

NEW YORK, Feb. 5.—Natalie Forbes, eighteen-year-old daughter of the millionaire aeronaut, A. Holland Forbes of New York and Fairfield, and who is engaged to a prominent Washington society man, has left home with the intention of going on the stage as a professional dancer, according to reports here today.

The girl is an amateur dancer of some ability, and on a recent visit to Bay City, Mich., made the acquaintance of a professional tangoist who is said to have promised her a contract. From her home in Fairfield, Miss Forbes went, it is said, to Bridgeport—arrived there with only ten cents—borrowed $100 from a business friend of her father and then came to the home of a friend here.

MEETS HER FATHER.

She telephoned her father and they met to talk things over. She then said she had decided to break her engagement to Howard McArdle Baldwin of Washington—member of the Chevy Chase Club and prominent in the capital.

Miss Forbes was located at the boarding house of Mrs. Edward L. Lockray, No. 105 West Seventy-sixth street.

Asked about the reported broken engagement, Mrs. Lockray said she would consult Miss Forbes, and a few minutes later the girl's head appeared over the banisters and she said:

"It's true that I have broken my engagement to marry Mr. Baldwin, but why do you ask?"

She was told of the report that she had run away from home and of the sudden termination of her engagement.

"But I didn't run away!" cried the girl. "Please deny the report. I came to New York yesterday and dined with my father. I don't know when I shall go back; nor do I know my plans well enough at this time to announce them."

TELLS ABOUT FIANCE.

"I'll tell you more about Mr. Baldwin, though," she laughed. "He is a Yale man. I met him last June. He is in Denver and I understand, is in bad health."

In Fairfield yesterday Mrs. Forbes said that her daughter had been ill of scarlet fever in Bay City and still was somewhat nervous.

On his arrival home last night, Mr. Forbes said:

"The story that my daughter has run away from home is a lie. I met her last night and went with her again today. She could not have borrowed money, as I gave her money today."

are strictly forbidden to speak to one another in the Charles Street Jail, or sing a note, and if the sound of their voices is heard by the matrons (these so-called lender, motherly guardians of our unfortunate women) they immediately threaten them with a padded cell, dry bread and cold water for a steady diet. And oft times they are reminded that their "vocation" may be extended to ten days. Undoubtedly treatment of this kind not only destroys their faith in God and man, but undermines their reason; neither does it take long to accomplish this end. The penal institutions are without a doubt directly responsible for thousands being in asylums today. The rules and regulations at Charles Street Jail are instruments by which those in charge are able to graft, and ill treat prisoners and fool the public. By what right has John Quinn or an other man to decide when one shall visit your city, county or State institutions. The institutions that use a set of rules like those in the Charles Street Jail should be investigated. And it is high time some one demanded a change in the kind of officials in these places that close their doors and sell the supporters that they can come in only at a time fixed by the men in power there.

AN OLD RECIPE TO DARKEN HAIR

Sage Tea and Sulphur Turns Gray, Faded Hair Dark and Glossy.

Almost everyone knows that Sage Tea and Sulphur, properly compounded, brings back the natural color and lustre to the hair when faded, streaked or gray; also ends dandruff, itching scalp, and stops falling hair. Years ago the only way to get this mixture was to make it at home, which is musty and troublesome.

Nowadays we simply ask at any drug store for "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy." You will get a large bottle for about 50 cents. Everybody uses this old, famous recipe, because no one can possibly tell that you darkened your hair, as it does it so naturally and evenly. You dampen a sponge or soft brush with it, and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair disappears, and after another application or two your hair becomes beautifully dark, thick and glossy, and you look years younger.

PASTOR SCORES TANGO 'SHAME' IN SOMERVILLE

Somerville—according to the Rev. Frederick A. Wilmot, one time actor and now pastor of the Third Universalist Church of Somerville—is "tangoing itself to the bow-wows." This was the theme of a remarkable discussion by the young preacher of conditions as he has found them in his home city.

His charges were first made in his sermon last Sunday; repeated since then in heated discussions with his aroused parishioners. He charged he had seen Chief of Police Kendall in the balcony of one dance hall while girls "with their trains down their back" danced "indecent dances" on the floor. Chief Kendall, upon this statement, commented: "That is a lie, and he's a liar if he said so."

Nevertheless, Mr. Wilmot—who upon graduating from college first served as assistant pastor in a New York church, then took a part in "Joseph and His Brethren" and in "The Daughter of Heaven"—persisted in his statements, and when asked to discuss them was ready to do so.

TELLS WHAT HE HAS SEEN.

"Why I have seen the tango danced in such a manner in Somerville," he began, "that if it was done in the same way at Hammerstein's in New York the police would close the theatre. It is ruining the morals of our city's youth and bringing to Somerville the worst elements from about Boston. It is a disgrace—worse than New York.

"I am not a prude—I do not object to dancing—not even to the tango. I believe the tango is a beautiful dance if executed as it should be and I have often watched it with pleasure—have danced it with pleasure. But as it is danced in some of the halls and at some private dances in this city it is worse than in New York.

"I have seen a little of life, you know. On the stage for one thing; and I spent some time abroad—considerable in Paris and not all devoted to the 'galleries.'

"DIPPED AND BUCKED."

"Of course you can find 'indecent' dancing in New York if you look for it, but here in Somerville you don't have to look for it. Last Saturday night I went into the place known as Anthoine's dance hall, a place that has always been looked upon as perfectly respectable and is patronized by the best boys and girls of our city. Professor Antholne is dead, and it is conducted by his widow, Mrs. E. C. Grant.

"I saw such things there as were positively indecent. Vulgar would not be the word. There were young girls—mere children they seemed to me—with hair in braids down their backs, older girls, but still only girls, and that repellant, sleek-faced type of young men. The girls they dipped and bucked each other up the hall was shameful.

"It has gone abroad that Somerville is wide open—that you can do anything there. The result is that every Saturday night the very worst sort of young men come over here and fill the dance halls."

Divorce Reformer Is Sued Himself

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 5.—Lucien H. Alexander, who was chairman of the American Bar Association, which is urging more stringent and uniform divorce laws, is suing his wife for divorce. He said she slapped his face. His wife claims she found "gushing" letters to another woman.

FOURTH SUIT FOR CUSTODY OF SAWYER GIRL

Mrs. Rosalie Van Praag Sawyer, formerly secretary to a prominent English tragedian, has entered suit for divorce in Los Angeles against Harry S. Sawyer of Salem, seeking for the fourth time to obtain the custody of her five-year-old daughter, Ruth.

Mrs. Sawyer has twice tried—once successfully—to take the child from Mrs. Sarah D. Sawyer, the little one's grandmother, in Salem.

Today the case stands continued by Judge Monroe in the California courts until he can obtain the records of the three prior actions fought out in the Massachusetts courts. Sawyer is charged with cruelty and non-support.

Sawyer blames the separation on the "lure of Broadway." His allegation is that Miss Grace Carlyle, an actress, took his wife and child on many extensive trips, in order to foil his efforts to recover her after an alleged kidnaping.

DEATH THREAT ALLEGED.

Prior to Mrs. Sawyer's actually obtaining possession of baby Ruth, Sawyer alleges that the mother, accompanied by Miss Carlyle, whizzed up to the Salem house one day in an automobile.

"The two women and their chauffeur entered the house and threatened to kill my mother unless she instantly delivered up the child to them," he charges. "My mother, with great courage, locked the door upon the three, and rang up the police. Thereupon my wife and her actress companion left, vowing vengeance."

Sawyer claims the courts two days later awarded the custody of Ruth to his mother and him. Other court proceedings followed, and the mother won the right to have the child in her custody for a part of the time.

CHILD UNITES PARENTS.

"Then my wife came to my mother's home," continues Sawyer, "and asked to have the child for just a day. I have learned that my wife immediately joined Miss Carlyle and they took Ruth to Chicago and then to Los Angeles."

Sawyer's detectives traced them, and the little one was finally recovered by the father. The child succeeded in uniting husband and wife not long after their appearance in court over the alleged kidnaping, and for a time they lived together again.

HUERTA WILL PROTECT ALL AMERICANS

nara, Sinaloa, Chihuahua and Durango.

I have directed my assistants to aid with the greatest consideration not only our own people but foreigners, and to give the fullest guarantees to foreigners that their property and homes will be protected as far as possible in all military operations. I have directed my assistants to see that all foreigners in zones of peril are removed to places of safety.

A number of students at the National Military Academy applied for permission to hold a parade this afternoon, but this was denied for fear that anti American riots would result. In spite of the refusal of the authorities to grant a permit, the students declared they would parade anyhow and make a demonstration before the National Palace.

Fighting was reported from the states of Oaxaca and Vera Cruz. The situation in the oil fields around Tampico is giving the government worry. The government cannot secure oil for railroads and manufacturing plants. The Interoceanic Railway is completely out of commission between San Luis Potosi and Tampico and south of Vera Cruz city.

MESSAGE TO AMERICAN.

In reply to a dispatch from the AMERICAN asking for a statement as to what the Huerta administration thinks of the removal of the arms embargo by President Wilson, the following cablegram was sent out by President Huerta:

Mexico City, Feb. 5.

To the Editor of the AMERICAN:

I reply to your esteemed message asking what the government of this republic, which is in my charge, thinks about the recent proclamation of His Excellency, the President of the United States in respect to Mexico.

The republic of Mexico and I personally declare, as to that proclamation, that no comment, whatever, is to be made. Take in the reply to your message.

But, as I desire to give to your important newspapers a complete idea of the situation in this republic, I will state that the government has at present 150,000 men in the Federal army and 35,000 irregular troops, making 185,000 men in all, with which armed contingents I have begun to open the campaign in the north.

I would like to have expert correspondents come to Mexico to end passports for ten staff correspondents of the military campaign with the understanding that the government under my charge will furnish first-class transportation to correspondents of principal newspapers in your great republic. Upon their arrival in Mexico they will be provided with all necessaries in money, food and armed protection, in order that they may move about with proper security in the principal fields of army operation and may tell as eyewitnesses the truth about what they see.

I may further that today, the 5th of February, in view of public necessity and for the sole purpose of pacification, the government is going to issue a decree adding 50,000 more men to the armed forces of the republic.

Thus proceeding of the government has no other object than to augment its military power, in order that it may carry out, in the shortest possible time, with due efficacy, its policy, which consists in re-establishing peace.

V. HUERTA,
President of Mexico.

HERE'S CHANCE TO EMPLOY WITS IN DRAMA LINE

Here is an opportunity to win money or see the best play in town free of charge by using your wits. The management of "Under Cover," the thrilling drama now current at the Plymouth Theatre, will offer prizes for the best description of the play contained in a single line. It is the intention to secure a number of pertinent phrases to be used to advertise "Under Cover" in the newspapers and on the billboards, and the management is willing to pay as high as a dollar a word for the right words.

For the best phrase received $10 will be paid. For the second best phrase $5 will be awarded. For the third best line an order for a box for any performance of "Under Cover," except Saturday nights or holidays, will be sent to the lucky contestant. For the next ten good lines selected one pair of seats good for Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday nights or Thursday matinee, will be issued.

This contest will close Saturday evening, February 14. Send your answers to the Contest Manager, Plymouth Theatre, Boston. No limit is placed on the number of entries.

Full details of the contest will be published in the half-page advertisement of "Under Cover" which will appear in next Sunday's AMERICAN.

A NURSE TAKES DOCTOR'S ADVICE

And Is Restored to Health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Euphemia, Ohio.—"Because of total ignorance of how to care for myself when verging into womanhood, and from taking cold when going to school, I suffered from a displacement, and each month I had severe pains and nausea, which always meant a lay-off from work for two to four days from the time I was 16 years old.

"I went to Kansas to live with my sister, and while there a doctor told me of the Pinkham remedies, but I did not use them then, as my faith in patent medicines was limited. After my sister died I came home to Ohio to live, and one day my Lome for the last 18 years.

"The Change of Life came when I was 47 years old, and about this time I saw my physical condition plainly described in one of your advertisements. Then I began using Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and I cannot tell you or anyone the relief it gave me in the first three months. It put me right where I need not lay off every month, and during the last 18 years I have not paid out two dollars to a doctor, and have been blest with excellent health for a woman of my age, and I can thank Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for it.

"Since the Change of Life is over I have been a maternity nurse, and being wholly self-supporting I cannot overestimate the value of good health. I have now earned a comfortable little home just by sewing and nursing. I have recommended the Compound to many with good results, as it is excellent to take before and after child-birth."—Miss Evelyn Adelia Stewart, Euphemia, Ohio.

MAYOR BARRY INDORSES PLAN FOR CHURCH DAY

Mayor Barry of Cambridge wants everyone to go to church next Sunday, which is Go-to-Church Day.

The Mayor says he has missed going to church on Sundays but once since he was a child. He states this in a letter to the chairman of the local Go-to-Church Day movement in that city, the Rev. Woodman Bradbury, pastor of the Old Cambridge Baptist Church.

This splendid record on the part of the Mayor has made a deep impression upon the people of Cambridge. They will make an extra effort to go to church next Sunday and try to get some of the spirit of the church going which has marked the Mayor's life for so many years.

The letter of the Mayor is in part as follows:

It gives me great pleasure to endorse Go-to-Church Sunday. The duty or custom of attending church on Sunday is one which should be approved by every serious minded person. I have missed church-going on Sunday, once since my childhood. I do not mention this in the spirit of self praise but to show the strength of the church-going custom and to thank you in behalf of the city of Cambridge for your zealous efforts and to improve the religious atmosphere of our beloved country.

J. EDWARD HARRY,
Mayor of Cambridge.

Go-to-Church Day parades will take place Saturday of this week in many of the smaller towns of New England. South Barre will have such a parade on next Saturday afternoon. The lodges and other organizations as well as the school children with the ministers, will take part in the parade, marching through different sections of the town carrying banners and arousing interest in the project.

Mrs. Leeds in Will of Father, Wife Not

NEW YORK, Feb. 5.—Mrs. William B. Leeds, widow of the $10,000,000 tin plate king, is co-beneficiary with her sister, Mrs. Margaret Green, under the will of their father, William C. Stewart, just filed at Montclair. Mrs. Stewart, the second wife of the testator, is not mentioned in the will. She was evicted from his home in 1911 after a quarrel.

Adele Ritchie Slaps Writ Server's Face

NEW YORK, Feb. 5.—Adele Ritchie purged herself of contempt of court by testifying in proceedings supplementary to a debt of $87 due for lights purchased by the actress. After the examination she slapped the face of a process server who handed her papers in another legal action.

SISTER SAYS BROKEN HEART KILLED COAKLEY

Arrangements for the funeral of Timothy W. Coakley, the noted lawyer who died of a broken heart, according to his sister, Miss Annie Coakley of South Boston, were partially completed today. The funeral will be held from the home of his mother, No. 52 Parsons street, Brighton, Saturday morning at 9 o'clock with a solemn high requiem mass in St. Columbkille's Church, Brighton. The interment will be in Holyhood Cemetery.

"Tim died of a broken heart caused by his confinement at the Pierce Farm while alienists were deciding there was absolutely no reason for his being held there as insane," said Miss Coakley today.

As a lawyer, politician, author, newspaperman and orator, Mr. Coakley was one of the most picturesque figures in Boston public life for the past quarter of a century.

Born in Cambridge and educated at Harvard, he began the practice of law in 1888.

In 1891 he was senior counsel in the famous Tighe murder case, the last capital case tried before the Supreme Court of this State. The verdict, manslaughter, with a seven-year sentence, was regarded as a great victory for Coakley, who was then but twenty-seven.

Coakley's most recent political efforts took place last Fall, when he fought District Attorney Pelletier for the Democratic nomination, and when defeated ran independently. He received upward of 10,000 votes.

Besides his sister Annie, with whom he lived, Coakley is survived by his mother, his widow, one brother, Daniel H. Coakley, and four other sisters —Mrs. Joseph A. Dennison, Mrs. Nellie Monahan, Mrs. Addie Gunn, and another who is a nun.

The body was taken today to the home of his mother, Mrs. Timothy Coakley, at No. 52 Parsons street, Brighton, where the funeral will be held.

Nielsen Recovers in Time for Opera

By FREDERICK JOHNS.

"The Barber of Seville," with a different cast from that of last Saturday, was sung at the opera last night. During the day its performance was doubtful, as Miss Nielsen was ill. But Miss Nielsen, who had never sung Rosina at the Boston Opera House, arose from her illness and declared she would sing.

She sang well. She appeared in excellent spirits. She is particularly suited in temperament and appearance to the sprightly Rosina, and her pretty lyric soprano, and her really extraordinary artistry combined to make her performance a pleasant one.

Arizona debuted as the barber, and a merry old barber was he. Marcoux as the crabb Don Basilio. Constantino's Count of Almaviva is perhaps his best role.

Mrs. Campbell to Explore Thibet

NEW YORK, Feb. 5.—"Men have won all the renown as explorers—from the North to the South Pole. There is no reason why women should not add to the glory of women in this field." So explained Mrs. Eulalia Leprieto Campbell in Elizabeth, N. J., in telling her plans for an exploring trip. "I am sailing next week for Singapore, where I shall join a number of British officers. We expect to learn the secrets of unexplored Thibet."

IMMIGRATION LITERACY TEST OPPOSED HERE

A big mass meeting will be held on Sunday in Lincoln Hall, Malden, to protest against the Burnett-Dillingham immigration bill which passed the House yesterday by a vote of 241 to 146. The meeting will be under the auspices of the Malden Cosmopolitan Immigration League, and the speakers will include: Isaac Heller, president of the Massachusetts Cosmopolitan Immigration League; Mayor Shumaker of Malden, Senator Charles M. Cox, Alderman Benjamin T. Tarbox, Abraham Alpert, editor of the Jewish Boston American; Attorney Samuel Lawrence Hallen, Nathan Hotman and A. Moldofsky.

As the bill passed, it provides that every immigrant admitted to the United States must be able to read "the English language, or some other language or dialect, including Hebrew or Yiddish." It prescribes the method of testing immigrants, providing that each applicant for admission must read a slip on which is printed between thirty and forty words.

All proposed amendments relating to the exclusion of Asiatic immigrants had previously been eliminated.

In its present form, this measure passed the House and the Senate in the last Congress, but was vetoed by President Taft.

"Let the Unfit Die," Declares Ramsay

BASEBALL ON SUNDAY GIVEN HEARING TODAY

Some of the more important matters being heard today by committees at the State House are:

Statue to Ben Butler.
Sunday baseball.
Suppressing mosquitoes.
Changing the name of Columbus Day.
Relief hospital for Dorchester.
Municipal building for Ward 20.

* * *

Before the Committee on Agriculture, it is "butter and cheese" day. The Committee on Roads and Bridges made it "motor cycle" day.

* * *

Speaker Cushing's Committee on Rules has voted to "let in" the Washburn resolution, calling upon the Federal government not to move towards the unscrambling of the New Haven system in New England until Washington has heard from the "legislatures" of the six New England States.

* * *

The Washburn resolution, which fits in admirably with the reported ousting of the New Haven crowd for "time," is particularly interesting because the only New England legislatures now in session are those of Massachusetts and Rhode Island. The legislatures of Maine, New Hampshire, Vermont and Connecticut will not sit until January, 1915.

* * *

Chairman Elliott has written the Public Service Commissioners declining to release the New Haven attorneys from their prerogative or privilege of refusing to answer questions—in the "other expenses" probe —on the plea that to do so would be to violate the professional confidences of their client, the railroad.

* * *

At the same time Chairman Elliott points out that consent on his part is "unnecessary, as the 'privilege of counsel' does not protect any attorney from stating what use he made of money which appears to have been paid by the New Haven Railroad Company."

* * *

The Boston Elevated Railway Company is likely to begin soon the issue of transfers from surface cars to elevated trains at Dewey square, South Station.

* * *

A request for such transfers went up to the Public Service Board yesterday signed by Senators Hickey, Fitzgerald and Horgan and Representatives Kearn, Lawler, Cummings, Anderson, Wall, Chapman, Cronin, Casey, Twohig, Hickey, McCullar and Lydon. Representative Sullivan conducted the hearing. Officials of the "L" intimated a belief that the request is righteous and proper.

* * *

Young gentleman throughout the Commonwealth—and some older ones —who wonder why the axe isn't working more swiftly may find food for thought in the figures again made public by Secretary Frank Donahue's report to the Legislature:

| Name | Occupation | Vote | Per Cent |
|---|---|---|---|
| Walsh | Democrat | 163,207 | 39.77 |
| Bird | Progressive | 112,793 | 27.72 |
| Gardner | Republican | 121,750 | 29.92 |
| Foss | Independent | 20,171 | 4.57 |

* * *

There will be other years after this one.

* * *

Secretary Donahue, whose report, as usual, is informing and comprehensive, recommends the abolition of party enrolment at primaries and the substitution, for the individual party ballot, of a single ballot with party columns.

* * *

The Secretary also aims at the wiping out of the new "Foss" party, although he does not refer to the former Governor by name.

* * *

Mr. Foss ran "Independent" in the recent election. His vote was more than 3 per cent. of the whole. The existing law provides that a party receiving so many votes may run again without the formality of taking out nomination papers. On this point the Secretary of State recommends:

* * *

"That the term 'independent' shall be permitted upon nomination papers, notwithstanding the fact that an 'Independent' candidate received at the last State election more than 3 per cent. of the vote cast for Governor, or else that some new definition be made as to what constitutes a political party, so that an individual may not usurp the use of the word 'Independent' by obtaining 3 per cent. or more of the votes cast for Governor."

* * *

Adjutant-General Pearson continues to go through all the motions, just as if the Governor were not asking the Legislature to revoke the Act of 1912 which gave the Adjutant-General a five-year term. Governor Walsh asks for the right exercised by all his predecessors to name his own "military private secretary."

* * *

Commanding officers met yesterday in the Adjutant-General's office to discuss next Summer's manoeuvres for the defence of Boston. There were seventeen companies represented in the party. The hearing on the proposed changes in the Adjutant-General's tenure takes place one week from next Wednesday.

Two Hurt as Auto Skids in Charlestown

A two-seated auto, owned by P. O'Riordan of City Square, Charlestown, skidded into an elevated pole at Maine and Middlesex streets, Charlestown, yesterday. Dominic McBride of No. 53 Massachusetts avenue, Lexington, the chauffeur, was cut on the face. # MAN LOSES BY MARRIAGE, SAYS LILY CAHILL

"Isn't a man crazy to stick his head into the matrimonial noose?
"Matrimony means sudden death to freedom.
"A man should ask himself: Can I bear to share my morning newspaper for the rest of my life?
"It's the children who are going to keep up the style of marriage, not the modern woman.
"The modern woman usually marries because it suits her convenience.
"In order to think a man must have a certain amount of solitude. Can he get that in his home. Never? Nowhere? Never!"—From Lily Cahill's opinions.

By ELIZABETH ELLIOTT.

When a very young and very pretty girl with big blue eyes and a childish face sits up very straight, looks you square in the eye and, while she shakes her finger most forbiddingly, declares "Any man is a fool to marry" you quite naturally gasp and she quite naturally giggles.

At least that is what the altogether charming and attractive Lily Cahill, leading lady of the "Under Cover" Company now playing at the Plymouth Theatre, did last night when I went behind the scenes to meet her and get a very little interview on how she preserved her beauty and kept so wonderfully slender.

I did not get her how she managed to keep so sylphlike, but she ignored my question completely and went back to the marrying proposition once more, so I was compelled to give in to her, and while she powdered her nose and rearranged her hair for the next act she gurgled in her charmingly frank way.

DOES MARRYING PAY?

"Just ask yourself the question: Does it pay a man to marry the modern woman—the woman who is so selfish that she cares for little except adulation, who insists upon the best clothes money can buy, and lots of them, and doesn't care a rap whether her hard-worked husband has more than one suit to his back or not? Isn't a man foolish now to stick his head into the matrimonial noose which surely means sudden death to freedom?

"Then, too, he can have whatever friends he likes to dine with him, and there is no one to look daggers at him and ask him what right he has to bring so many friends home night after night; he may choose what friends he wishes, and there is no nagging wife to nag and friends to wreck. But most important of all and a question every man should seriously ask himself before he decides to take the fatal leap is: Can I bear to share my morning newspaper for the rest of my life?

"MATRIMONY WOULD FADE."

"It's the children who are going to keep up the style of marriage—not the modern woman. If she were all to be considered, then matrimony would fade away and die, for many men want children, and it is for the sake of them that they are willing to give up all the joys of bachelorhood."

"Isn't there a solution to all this?"

"There may be, but I haven't found it out yet. Some people might say, 'Let the husband have the freedom; let him still keep up with his clubs and his old friends.' But the moment they try that scheme the wife is sure to be grouchy about his staying out late and nags him to death about never seeing him and finally takes the notion she'll have a good time, too, and begins going about some herself. This is sure death to happy marriage, for instead of caring for her home she's soon off tangoing or going to matinees and teas and having such a good time herself that her husband soon begins the mashing and shortly there's an end to their brief span of married life.

THOSE STAY-AT-HOMES.

"Others suggest that he be a stay-at-home and devote al his time to his wife. Well, when he begins to do that they suddenly find themselves getting on one another's nerves. Their interests become centred on the goings and comings of their neighbors, and they narrow down to just two critical, fussy gossips.

"There is soon an end to all endurance of an existence of that kind —so what is there to be done, except to warn the men against marrying?

"How about two people who love each other, aren't they to marry?" I questioned.

"Oh, yes, provide there is a tremendous love there, a love big enough and loyal enough to help them over all the petty trivialities of life—then they should marry. But I think it's very seldom these days that we find such a love," she added.

Cold Storage Goods Defended by Expert

Dr. Mary S. Pennington, chief of the United States food research laboratory, defended the cold storage warehouses at the 25th banquet and ladies' night of the Boston Fruit and Produce Exchange at the Hotel Somerset. "The country," she said, "is dependent today upon these concerns for its very life. We can't live always attached to a hen, nor with our arms around the head of a cow, but we can put eggs in cold storage for ten months and keep them good, and we can put milk in bottles and keep it fresh a long time."

BREMNER DEAD OF CANCER; CURE BY RADIUM FAILS

BALTIMORE, Feb. 5.—Congressman Robert G. Bremner of Passaic, N. J., who has been under the radium treatment for cancer at Dr. Kelly's sanitarium here, died at 10:23 a. m. today.

The gallant fight which Congressman Bremner made against death attracted the attention of the entire country. It also augmented the public interest in the treatment of cancer with radium. Upon several occasions when the patient seemed to be sinking to his death he rallied, giving hope to his family his natural vitality coupled with the curative properties of the radium might at least prolong his life. Aside from the interest dictated by personal friendship President Wilson followed closely by the condition of Congressman Bremner because of the stricken statesman's sponsorship of a measure to create a federal bureau of labor safety.

WATCHED BY WHOLE WORLD.

In many circles the death of the representative made itself felt. To medical men it brought home the fact that radium is not a sure cure for cancer. Dr. Howard A. Kelly, owner of the sanitarium in which Mr. Bremner died, is now in Europe and the administrations of radium which were begun by Dr. Kelly in person have been made by attaches of his staff since his departure from this country. In the treatment $100,000 worth of radium was imbedded at regular intervals into the patient's left shoulder, where the malignant growth had its inception.

The precious metal was put into tubes, coated with rubber, which were placed in incisions made with a surgeon's knife. The treatment was regarded as one of the most important in the recent history of medicine in this country and the progress of the patient was closely watched.

The amount of radium was the largest ever used in the treatment of such an ailment.

BORN IN SCOTLAND.

Robert Gunn Bremner was born in Caithness, Scotland, December 17, 1874.

Before reaching his majority he came to the United States, and in 1895 procured a position as a reporter in Paterson, N. J. When the Spanish-American war broke out the call to arms attracted the young reporter and he enlisted. At its close he returned to Passaic, N. J., taking control of the Daily Herald in 1902. He remained its editor until his death. Representative Bremner's election to the Sixty-Third Congress was the result of his first venture into the political field. Although his district, the seventh, is strongly Republican normally, he was elected by a large majority.

Tramps Conduct Comrade's Funeral

CINCINNATI, Feb. 5.—The body of a tramp who was shot and killed here last Saturday after breaking into a house, was identified by Mrs. Nettie Nealand of this city as Robert Doorn of Louisville. A number of vagrants contributed seventy-five cents to buy flowers for him. Fifty of them sang hymns. An undertaker donated a hearse and coffin, and more than 100 tramps trudged behind it to the cemetery.

HALT HALL SUIT ON ACCOUNT OF STORY IN PAPER

Judge Brown, sitting in the third session of the Suffolk Superior Civil Court, today took from the jury the $150,000 suits of James Hall, attorney, against Paine, Webber & Co., stockbrokers. He discharged the jury.

This action was the results of protests against news matter appearing in the Boston Journal yesterday and today. Yesterday, Attorney Robert M. Morse, representing Paine, Webber & Co., protested against yesterday's story. After consultation, Judge Brown asked each juror if he had read the news article, and found that none had. He dropped the matter.

Today, however, Attorney Morse renewed protests, and without questioning the jury Judge Brown took the case out of their hands. Attorney Whipple opposed this on the ground that the suit has already cost his client $10,000 for which he has no redress.

Hall sued for $150,000—two suits of $75,000 each. The suit has been on trial three weeks. Thomas W. Lawson was yesterday a witness and was prepared to go on today. This is the third trial of the case. One was stopped by illness of a juror; the other by the death of Judge Pratt.

ARREST PASTOR ON CHARGES BY BOYS' PARENTS

FITCHBURG, Feb. 5.—Following the secret arrest Monday of the Rev. Charles S. Bates, fifty, pastor of the Congregational Church here on complaint of parents of boys, an appeal will be made to have him unfrocked, according to Chester A. Burtee, a member of the supply committee of the church.

The parents who made the complaint against the pastor, which resulted in his being taken into custody by a State police officer just as he was leaving his home for a visit to Boston, reside in his former parish at Vendell and Farley.

Sunday the pastor told his congregation he expected to go away for a few days. He came to Fitchburg from Wendell and Farley less than a year ago. It is said by the police that he was asked to resign from pastorates in Southampton and Truro.

TWO HELD FOR BLACKMAILING MISS MACVANE

Miss Dorothea Macvane, the opera singer and daughter of the late Professor Silas Macvane of Harvard, has won the first step in her prosecution of the two men she accused of blackmail in connection with her recent experiences at Taranto, Italy, according to a cable dispatch from Rome today. Innocente Cicala and Carlo Carrucci, the two men accused by the former Cambridge girl, have been formally committed for trial in the court at Taranto.

Miss Macvane was placed under surveillance about two months ago on the charge of having been a spy.

The blackmail charge for which the two socialists were committed is said to have had its conception in the fervid love which an Italian naval officer, who had been rejected by Miss Macvane as a suitor, entertained for her. Soon after hiso vertures had been repulsed Miss Macvane became the victim of the strictest espionage. Miss Macvane was told by the men now committed for trial that if she would pay a certain amount of money they would not publish an article derogatory to her character. She refused to be blackmailed and succeeded in bringing her predicament to the attention of her Ambassador.

LARGE PROFIT FOR RAILROAD

No Watered Stock and No Shares Bought or Sold on Stock Exchanges.

A railroad reaching from the Atlantic to the Pacific Ocean, and yet traversing but forty-seven miles in all, would seem impossible. Such a railroad there is, however, and it has been in operation almost sixty years, the road having been completed in the year 1855. This railroad runs across the Isthmus of Panama, and when the United States purchased the narrow strip of land through which it runs, now known as the Canal Zone, it came into possession of the railroad, and has since operated it mainly to aid in the building of the great waterway.

This now being a government-owned railroad, there is none of its stock bought or sold on the market, but it is said that at one time it carried on some high financing of its own, at which time water was added to its assets as plentifully as it covered its roadbed in various places along its route. But eventually it proved to be a money-making institution and paid large dividends.

"Panama and the Canal in Picture and Prose" tells all about this big little railroad and the country through which it runs. It is an interesting story and appropriately illustrated.

The American is now distributing this book to its readers as explained elsewhere in this issue. Look for the Panama certificate and clip it without delay.

AKED TO QUIT POST IN DIVINE BIRTH DISPUTE

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 5.—The Rev. Dr. Charles F. Aked, formerly pastor of John D. Rockefeller's Fifth Avenue Baptist Church in New York, has announced he would accede to a demand that he resign as president of the San Francisco Church Federation at the next meeting of its executive committee on February 11.

The demand was made by the Presbyterian Ministers' Association, a member of the Federation, because of a sermon which Dr. Aked preached in the pulpit of his church here, the First Congregational, last Sunday. He said:

"The faith of Mark, John, James and Paul is good enough for any Christian. These men say nothing about Jesus having come into the world in a miraculous way.

What do we mean, then, by saying he was divine? There is divinity in us all, but so much more in Him that I prefer to call him divine. Perhaps it would be better to speak of the divineness of man and the divinity of Christ."

Back Bay Women Bring $10,000 Suit

The Misses Hannah M. and Grace Edwards of No. 266 Beacon street, members of the exclusive society set, filed suit, through their counsel, in the Suffolk Superior Civil Court for $10,000 against Catholina Lambert of Paterson, N. J., claiming he sold them for $6,000 a painting which they now say is not genuine.

They maintain that Lambert brought them a painting which he said was a genuine Da Panicale, over 500 years old and very valuable.

They said that they were led to believe that the picture was all that was represented and that they bought it for a real work of De Panicale.

HEARST PAPERS HELP BULGARIAN FUND TO GROW

This Autocar Daily Secures New And Valuable Trade For Hoffman, Florist

Four years of continuous service have proved the Autocar an economical Business Getter for this enterprising concern.

BUSINESS concerns who adopt the Autocar, are astonished, first of all, at the big increase in delivery radius which immediately follows, and the larger number of customers they are able to take care of. They are so used to thinking in standards of the horse that motor truck service becomes a revelation.

Take the case of Hoffman, Florist, Massachusetts Ave., corner Commonwealth. At one time he was among the "doubters" on the subject of motor delivery. "The motor truck may be all right in certain lines of business for big concerns with large capital," he said, "but it is out of the question for me."

This was several years ago. But for the past four years Hoffman has used an Autocar! and after this thorough tryout, running his car in all seasons and in all sorts of road conditions, his present attitude toward the Autocar is important testimony as to its worth:

"In answer to your inquiry would say I have used my Autocar for four seasons and I would find it impossible now to do without it. The car had been in my service only a few weeks when my eyes were opened as to its delivery possibilities—the amount of ground it covered and the great number of customers I could reach in a short time. Its economy of operation is also an important feature.

"The Autocar has done the work of three or four horses regularly and has averaged from 40 to 50 miles a day. In rush seasons it has done a great deal more than this and has increased my business to a marked degree, securing new trade in sections I never attempted to reach with horses.

"Since owning the Autocar I have been able to fill countless orders which I would have otherwise have had to put off until the next day or use extra teams. A large part of the florist's business is with weddings and funerals. They require extreme promptness and considerable detail. The Autocar takes care of them in fine shape and its promptness in making deliveries is very satisfying to my customers.

The Autocar

"Used in Every Line of Business"

"My Autocar has very seldom been laid up even for a single day since I put it on the road. This speaks for itself as to its ability to stand up under trying conditions and I have run it regularly to all parts of Boston and vicinity ever since I bought it.

"I always have a satisfied feeling that the car is right on the job at every moment and is not failing me in an important mission. Taken all in all, I consider it a first-class investment and an indispensable aid to my business."

What the Autocar is doing for Hoffman and 1300 other concerns it can do for YOUR delivery system. We have all the testimony and figures any man could ask to prove this.

Prescription Accuracy

And How It Is Secured

AT THE RIKER-JAYNES STORES

The first step in treating sickness in your home is to call a doctor, and in doing so you call one whom you have confidence in, believing him to be the best. The next step is to have filled the prescription he gives you. That is our part of the work, and we want you to have the same feeling of safety in the knowledge that your prescription has been filled at one of our stores that you have in your doctor.

In compounding a prescription two things are of vital importance:
That the INGREDIENTS used are of the best quality and in fresh condition.
That the COMPOUNDING be attended to by men of experience who are duly qualified for such work.

Our Prescription Departments Are Models in This Respect

The DRUGS we use are all of the very highest quality, purchased by us from reliable manufacturers, and before being accepted are subjected by us to critical analysis by our chemists in order to determine if they are of the required standard.

The COMPOUNDING is all done by Registered Pharmacists, who, by examination, have proven themselves worthy of the certificates they hold attesting to their ability. We have from four to twelve such registered men in every one of our stores, and every prescription is not only compounded by such a man, but is double-checked by another equally competent man in order to avoid error.

In every Prescription Room we have conspicuously posted a very stringent set of rules, from which we allow no deviation whatever under any circumstances.

One of these rules is that we allow no Substitution.

Every prescription must be filled exactly as the physician prescribed.

There are many other equally important rules, all of which are lived up to, making our prescription departments absolutely reliable. We have left nothing undone to make them perfect, and in every city where we have stores we earnestly request the physicians to visit them—make themselves known and allow us to show them through our prescription department in order that they may see the quality and assortment of drugs we use—our rules for compounding—the class of men who attend to this branch and the stringent set of rules under which they work.

It would be impossible for any organization to go to more expense or take more care to ensure that every prescription is compounded in the best possible manner, and we feel that if the physicians and the public realized this and would take the trouble to investigate our claims they would commend our painstaking endeavors.

WALTER CAMP'S COLUMN

England and Germany Try to Develop Athletes For the Olympics at Small Expense—While America Spends a Huge Sum to Build Them "From the Ground Up."

Written Expressly for the Boston American.

By WALTER CAMP.

DEAN HOLE, in one of his stories, speaking of a preacher, says a woman of his congregation complained: "This man we've got roars so loud that John cannot sleep comfortable."

At last, now that the Duke of Westminster has resigned and closed up the Olympic Fund, poor John Bull may "sleep comfortable" again with $500,000 well buttoned up in his pockets! But can he? Will there not be others who will again empty his little nap? What's to be done with preachers, anyway, if they keep poor England awake with their roarings as to his parlous state?

So England decided to pay an American trainer $2,000 and allow him $750 traveling money and let him go out and get an Olympic team, train them and win the games.

We wonder what it will cost Sir Thomas Lipton to line up Shamrock IV.!

It is rather a coincidence that exactly the same amount asked for by the Duke of Westminster and his Olympic team, namely, $500,000, is what D. C. Jackling, a Salt Lake City mining engineer, and one of the Rocky Mountain Club of New York members, is accredited with paying for his new yacht Cyprus—the first of oil fuel consuming yachts—which is on the way to Panama now on its first cruise.

* * * * *

SUPPLY AND DEMAND GOVERNS IT.

REFERENCE was made in a recent article to the increase in cost of teaching in sports. Even the trainers in preparatory schools now receive salaries that twenty years ago—yes, even ten years ago—would have seemed out of reason.

Yet the old law of supply and demand is just as sure to be operative in these things as in any other wage scale, and there is no way of getting around it.

As noted earlier in these columns, there may come a time when it will seem wise, by mutual consent, to reduce the cost of this kind of instruction, but when it is an open market and when universities, colleges or schools wish to secure expert instruction in certain branches, the pay of the instructor will naturally be governed by the number of competent men there are to be had and the desire of others to secure them.

* * * * *

GERMANS MUST SUBSCRIBE TO FUND.

REICHSTAG turned down the proposition for an appropriation for similar purposes as that of the Duke of Westminster.

Reports are, however, that this was done through the Socialists' vote and was a matter of politics. At any rate, Kraenzlein, the American trainer, who was taken back by the German Olympic Committee when they visited the United States, states that it will have no effect upon the development of the German team, but will rather aid, for it will stimulate private subscription. Furthermore, there is a possibility that the measure may come up again for further consideration.

In the first article of this series there was a prediction relative to this international rivalry, and as we proceed further along the pathway to the next Olympic games we shall see more of this.

The German commissioners, who were over here, had an excellent opportunity to observe what was being done, and, although their stay was a short one, they must have seen something of the development from the bottom up that has taken place in athletics in the United States.

* * * * *

ATHLETICS FLOURISHING HERE.

IF trainers in the preparatory schools command salaries far better than the one in England is prepared to put up for the head of his training system, it is not difficult to follow the probabilities that presage the result.

If every preparatory school in the country be provided with an expert trainer, and every university with an expert trainer who takes the men after they come from the preparatory schools, and if each athletic club has an expert trainer, the chances are that the development of the country in which this athletic organization is operative will turn out more and better men in the specialties for which they train than any country working under the old "hit-or-miss" methods.

WASHINGTON—Clarke Griffith, manager of the Washington team, has received a letter from Clyde Milan, the Senator's star outfielder, stating that there was no occasion for Griffith to do any worrying as to Milan's intentions for the coming season.

SUNBURY, Pa.—Birdie Cree of the New York outfielders said today that, while he had made no final decision as to signing for next season, he felt he would accept the three years' contract with the New York club, Manager Chance having boosted his salary to $7,500 per year.

BALTIMORE—Elliott Bent, whose pitching helped Atlanta to win the Southern League pennant last year, has been signed by the Pittsburgh Federal League club.

NEW YORK—The players of the Newark club of the International League have been ordered to report for spring training to Manager Smith at Columbus, Ga., on February 15.

KANSAS CITY—Drummond Brown, catcher, who was with the Buffalo Nationals and Toronto last season, has signed a two-year contract with the Kansas City team of the Federal League.

CINCINNATI—Earle Hackburn, a catcher, who played with the local National League team last year, has come to terms with President Herrmann and signed a contract for the season.

LANNIN FEELS SURE COLLINS WILL SIGN UP

President Lannin of the Red Sox does not fear the threats of Ray Collins to quit baseball unless the club meets his demand. Lannin feels that when the time comes for the players to start Spring training the star southpaw will be among their number.

"Collins probably figures he is worth more than the sum named in his contract," said Mr. Lannin. "Most every player, as a rule, believes his value underestimated when the club owners send out contracts. He was sent a contract far exceeding that made out to him a year ago, but, as I understand it, he believes a sum should be inserted exceeding the total of his contract and what was given him as a bonus by McAleer. I think Collins is a level-headed fellow, and the club hardly expects any trouble from him when we have a talk."

Catcher Chester D. Thomas has sent word to the Red Sox headquarters that he will accept the terms offered him. With Thomas in line, the Red Sox are now assured of a complete receiving staff. A contract has been mailed to him.

SIDELIGHTS ON SPORTS By A.H.C. Mitchell

HAP MYERS, who, as every baseball fan knows, is shaped like a pair of curling tongs, has made a most remarkable contract with the Federal League Club of Buffalo. Hap is something of a financier, as ball players who have played poker against him can testify.

HAP has signed to play with the Buffalo Feds, providing things are satisfactory to him after he has given them the once over.

In other words, Hap has signed a contract with the Buffalo Feds which permits him to quit if the lineup doesn't suit him.

And Hap got $500 for signing that contract.

Can you beat it?

Things are coming pretty easy for the ball players these days, but Hap's contract with the Feds is about the easiest thing yet.

OUR old friend, Fred Beck, the easy-going, good-natured, care-free ball player, who used to play the outfield and occasionally first base for the team that was known as the Doves several years ago and who used to poke the ball over the right field fence at the South End grounds now and then, recently jumped to the Federal League. He now wants to get back in organized baseball, but the Buffalo Club which had Beck under contract last season doesn't want him back.

BECK accepted terms from the Buffalo Club and then signed with Tinker, manager of the Chicago Feds. After thinking the matter over he decided he would rather play with his old team, and so wrote President Stein, adding that he would sign a contract as soon as it was sent to him. Beck has always been rated a slow thinker. Stein says the Feds can have him.

STEIN regards the Federal League as a joke as far as Buffalo is concerned. He says that not more than $15,000 has been subscribed toward establishing a club in Buffalo and that suitable grounds cannot be obtained, in his opinion.

This, of course, is Stein's side of it.

ACCORDING to one National League magnate, the Federal league has cost the major organizations more than $200,000 in advanced salaries. The term of nearly every ball player that is wanted have to be met owing to the activities of the "outlaws."

BASEBALL wars seem to come along once in a decade. While they last they are expensive to the club owners involved. The players derive the benefit of the battles for their services.

WISE baseball managers claim that a pitcher is 75 per cent. of a ball club. Of course, this puts Ty Cobb, Joe Jackson, Tris Speaker and Frank Baker in the 25 per cent. class.

BUT the pitching staff is what makes the ball club after all is said and done. It is the skill of the Mathewsons, Woods, Johnsons, Benders, Planks and Gregas that count in the long run.

Connie Mack estimates his pitching strength at 75 per cent. Joe Birmingham, the Naps' leader, says: "Give me the pitchers and then anybody can show you a ball club."

School Notes

A triangular race which will undoubtedly attract great attention is being planned to be held on the Charles River Basin in connection with the Harvard-Cornell boat race on May 30, bringing together the crews of Stone School, Cutler Academy and Cascadilla School of Ithaca, N. Y.

Stone School has turned out excellent oarsmen during the past few years and promises to be bright for another good crew this season. Cascadilla had one of the best rowing crews in the country last season and had a second crew that ranked well up with the best, so it is expected that a championship eight will again be turned out, as much of the veteran material is available.

The Dorchester High track team should have an easy time in defeating Medford High in the dual set of games to be held at the Dorchester High gymnasium tomorrow afternoon. Dorchester High has a very evenly balanced team, and Captain Sullivan, Kelley, Hughes, Bowers and Thomas should succeed in adding a number to their point, should be one of the big point winners.

Thomas, one of the stars of the Medford High team, is lost to the school in consequence of scholarship standings and will be unable to compete for some time.

BOWLING FACTS AND COMMENT

Many bowling "fans" believe that the result of the match between Captain Cassidy's team and the City League championships, Cassidy's team every point and now has a seventeen ball lead. Jack Sheedy's rollers, Make the Realists believe we will take a big break in the last half of the campaign, but seven points is a big handicap to overcome, especially when the season is so well along.

If Boylston Bowling Alley Chairman Sullivan the evening, Sullivan's team will be in a position to secure the title, as seventeen points behind the leaders.

Paul Poehler was the main cog in Cassidy's string of victory, last week he rolled 100 strikes in a cushion. He hammered the maples for a total of 1076, giving an average of 179 and 2/3.

Wendell, as usual, did the high running in Cassidy's City League. His total of 344 was quite a few points higher than any other bowler in the organization could show.

Mr. Sheedy's team continued its good work in the Knights of Columbus League by taking all four points before Referee Sullivan. Sheedy's men have strong hopes of winning the championship of their league.

Follett had the honors in the weekly series of the Newton Bowling Alley Leagues. Follett did his best work in the fourth string, when he managed to cover the maples and bowled his total to 360.

Walker was not in his usual form Saturday when it carried away the majority of the points in the Boston Post Dynamo in the Bethel Social League.

"Bo" Hartford made things hum for his Merchants' team in the City League last week when he rolled 360 for the fourth high quintet string total of 1,567. This was a new high record for the season, which is held by Somerset.

Liggett's Stores are distributing the books without one cent of profit to themselves.

"IN 1898 the race of the Battleship 'Oregon' around Cape Horn to join the United States fleet off Cuba in the Spanish American war offered just the graphic and specific argument necessary to fix the determination of the American people to dig that canal and to own it. That voyage of 10,000 miles, which might have been avoided by a ditch fifty miles long, revolted the common sense of the nation, and the demand for instant action on the canal question was universal."

The above brief statement from Willis J. Abbot's great book, "Panama and the Canal in Picture and Prose," gives the real reason for the quick action taken by our Government to complete and own a canal across the Isthmus, even though the French had acknowledged their inability to complete it after 20 years of unavailing effort and the expenditure of $260,000,000.

JOE EAGAN AND JASPER CLASH IN LAWRENCE

By JACK CONWAY.

JOE EAGAN and "Young" Jasper, old ring rivals, will clash in a twelve-round bout before the Unity Cycle Club in Lawrence tonight. These men have already fought twice, each boxer having one victory to his credit.

The bout this evening is expected to be a spirited affair. There are few glove men in New England who know more about the fistic game than Eagan. He is a fast, skilful boxer and also a hard puncher.

The Peninsular boy has not done a great deal of work in the ring since he lost to Gilbert Gallant at the Atlas A. A. He started a "come-back" campaign in Marieville, R. I., last week and made good. He asserts that if he wins from Jasper, he will start after a bout with Steve Kennedy, the Lawrence lightweight, whom he has already defeated.

Jasper is reported as being fit for tonight's "go," and should carry Eagan along at a merry pace.

TOM McCAREY, the Los Angeles fight promoter, is trying to arrange a bout between "Kid" Williams and Johnny Coulon for the bantamweight championship of the world. Coulon is the title holder while the Baltimore youth is his logical opponent.

Coulon seems to be a dead issue as a star performer. The little Chicago boxer has been ill a great deal during the past two years and has received a number of severe injuries in his bouts. As a result he is no longer able to travel at a merry pace for twenty rounds. That is the reason why many boxing experts believe Williams would be able to vanquish the Windy City youth.

MATTY BALDWIN and Frankie Mack signed the final articles of agreement today for their fifteen-round bout which will be staged before the Marieville A. C. in Rhode Island next Wednesday night. Baldwin has been training for over a week and Eddie Murphy, his manager, is not a bit bashful in stating that the Bunker Hill boy will soon be camping on the trail of the leading 133-pound boxers in the country.

MATTY plans to meet all the star New England lightweights one after the other. He says that this will condition him for his contests with the top-notchers.

MACK should make things interesting for the Charlestown "Bearcat." Frankie, of course, has not had a great deal of ring experience and is not a very rugged youth, but he is a fast, elusive boxer and is certain to worry Baldwin.

BOB BAXTER, the Scotch lightweight, will make his professional debut in the semi-final match. He will be pitted against Tommy Hanna who hails from Providence.

SEVERAL liberal-hearted English boxing promoters are attempting to arrange a bout between Samuel Langford, a dusky citizen of Cambridge, and "Gunboat" Smith. The gunner has been offered $10,000 and two round trip tickets to meet "Ho Ho." Jim Buckley, Smith's manager, once spent a day in a banker's office and demands $12,500 and three round trip tickets for his end of the purse for a whirl with Langford.

BUCKLEY has a pretty good opinion of Smith's value as a drawing card, but he is still only a rank third-rater when compared to Mr. William Ritchie, champion "holdup" boxer of the world.

SMITH is a lucky guy in one way. If he does decide to go to England he will not get seasick on the way over as he was once a sailor.

THE writer knows of a number of prominent boxers who refuse to go to Europe or to Australia for fear of becoming seasick. Billy Papke gets seasick very easily and he recently stated that he would rather fight Sam Langford than make another long ocean voyage.

JOHNNY KILBANE, the featherweight champion, is annexing considerable "easy money" meeting second and third-raters. Johnny figures that it is better business to get $1,000 for boxing a third-rater and to keep busy than it would be to receive $4,000 and enter a ring with a rugged performer.

PACKEY M'FARLAND is in New York trying to arrange a match with Mike Gibbons. The Packey-Gibbons bout may be on again in a few days only to be postponed or called off duty after hundreds of valuable columns in the various newspapers throughout the country have been wasted in advertising the affair.

ABE ATTELL still asserts that he is Johnny Kilbane's master. We might also add that Bombardier Wells is yet a candidate for the heavyweight championship of the world.

RILEY'S GOSSIP ON SPORT TOPICS

WHEN "King" Cole jumped from the New York Yankees the most of the baseball writers for the New York newspapers said:

"Small loss"; "Cole was a has-been, anyway", "he only made good for a short time in the big leagues", "Gilmore's organization has picked another lemon", "Frank Chance says that he's not disturbed over Cole's loss", "he never will be missed," etc.

When "King" Cole jumped from the Federals back to the New York Yankees, the most of the baseball writers for New York newspapers said:

"A great stroke by the major leagues", "this means another body blow to the 'Federals'", "it will be a big loss to the outlaws", "they have placed Cole under guard so that he won't escape again", "Frank Chance says that he thinks Cole is likely to be a top-notcher", "'King' Cole is to be a wonderful acquisition", etc.

From which the writer gathers the information that, although Charley Murphy's secretary jumped after twenty-nine years' service with the Cubs, the big league press agents have not yet taken the final leap.

* * *

THEY wrote in the same strain when "Big Ed" Sweeney and Russell Ford were posted as "jumpers from our club." Last spring the New York baseball writers who now solemnly aver that Sweeney is a much better catcher than Sweeney" and that Russell Ford is a dead phenomenon with a glass arm, anyway," were remarking:

"With Sweeney and Ford signed up as a nucleus, Frank Chance has hopes of building up a regular baseball team." Or words to that effect.

THIS scheme of sending a guide along with Francis Ouimet to show him how to play golf in England would have been duplicated in cleverness a half-century ago if they had shipped along an instructor on "How to Beat Lee" with Grant, or a half-century or so before that if they had given Napoleon a book on "How to Cross the Alps," or if, coming right down to today, they gave us some inside information on teaching our grannies how to suck eggs.

OUTLAWS AFTER TRIS SPEAKER AND CRAWFORD

The Federal League is hot on the trail of Tris Speaker, the great Red Sox outfielder, and Sam Crawford the Detroit slugger. These two stars will be made offers by the outlaws, according to reports sent out from Chicago.

Speaker is not under contract to play with the Red Sox this year. But if the Federals hope to land the Texan they will have to offer him a contract calling for over $9000 a year. This is the salary which Tris was paid by the Red Sox last year.

If Speaker were to join the outlaws, he would naturally demand a three or five year contract. He would also ask for a considerable increase over $9000. It is doubtful whether the Federals could secure Speaker unless they offered him $15,000 a season, and then it is a question whether the Red Sox star would join a league which many experts believe will be forced to disband before July.

Chapter XLVII.—Continued

HIS eyes were sparkling and so I suppose were mine, while with a joyous rush of racy words (punctuated by me with "Yes," "Yes," "Yes") he told of a long dispatch from the lieutenant published by one of the London papers to Sidney Martin had been personally mentioned—how he had just missed command of some difficult and perilous expedition, and

"How splendid his disappointment must have been! How perfectly magnificent!" I said.

"Isn't it?" said the doctor, and for a few moments we strolled quick quarter of a mile in silence. Then he said,

"But I'm afraid it's a great deal stranger I haven't told you. There was only one other person at home he used to talk to about his work, and that was myself. I think he was calling him Sidney Martin Maloney, I suppose."

"For Mary," I said.

"Mary, is it? Why, he never told me that. Where in the name of all St. Patrick has been the Irish head in me that I never thought of that before? And you were Mary. Yes. Well, by the powers, you've a right to be proud of him, for he was thinking pearls and diamonds of you. I was merely jealous of Mally I remember. 'Mally's a stunner,' he used to say. 'Follow you anywhere, I would, if you wanted it, in spite of the devil and hell.'"

EYES GREW MISTY

The sparkling eyes were growing misty by this time, but the woman in me made me say—I couldn't help it—

"I dare say he's had many girl friends since my time, though."

"Starra a one. The girls used to be putting a glime on him in Dublin [illegible] but never a mother's daughter [illegible] girls—but never a mother [illegible] look like a [illegible]

I dare [illegible] him [illegible] what I [illegible] would happen to me if he did—so I jumped in by telling him that if he would step into the car, I would drive him back to Rome.

He did so, and all the way he talked of Martin, his courage and [illegible] and the hardships he had gone through, until (with backward thoughts of Alma and my husband riding away over the Campagna) my heart, which had been leaping like a lark, began to [illegible]

We returned by the [illegible] on the Way, where the [illegible] were [illegible] and past the grave of the "young English poet" of whom I have thought it was not so sad [illegible] died of consumption and in the bitterness of a broken heart.

All this time I was so much at home with the young Irish doctor who was Martin's friend, that it was not until I was putting him down at his hotel that I remembered I had not even known his name

It was O'Sullivan.

Forty-Eighth Chapter

EVERY day during our visit to Rome I had reminded myself of the Reverend Mother's invitation to call on her, and a sense of moral duty had prevented me, but now I determined to see her at least by going to Benediction at her convent church the very next day.

It happened, however, that this was the time when the Artists' Club of Rome were giving a Vegliono (a kind of fancy-dress ball) and as Alma and my husband desired to go to it, and were still in the way of using me to keep themselves in countenance, I consented to accompany them on condition that I did not dress or dance, and that they would go with me to Benediction the following day.

"Dear sweet girl!" said Alma. "We'll do whatever you like. Of course we will."

I wore my soft satin without any ornaments, and my husband merely put scarlet facings on the lapels of [illegible] and Alma was clad [illegible] gold, with [illegible] showed her [illegible] a long train [illegible] look like a [illegible]

[illegible] we reached the theatre, but already the auditorium was full and so well had the [illegible] of decoration, [illegible] with floating specks of many-colored lights, like the fire-flies at Nemi, that the scene was one of enchantment.

It was difficult to believe that on the other side of the walls was the street, with the clanging electric bells and people hurrying by with their collars up, for the night was cold, and it had begun to rain as we came in, and one poor woman, with a child in her arms, was standing by the [illegible] trying to sell evening [illegible]

I sat alone in a box on the ground floor while Alma and my husband and [illegible] were below on the level [illegible] (the stalls) that had been arranged for the dancing, which began immediately after we arrived and went on without a break until long after midnight.

SUPPER ON STAGE

[illegible] supper on the stage and those [illegible] not eat drank a good deal of [illegible] nearly everybody seemed to be under the influence of alcohol. As the evening [illegible] of the people, especially some of the women (not good women I fear), seemed to lose all control of themselves, singing snatches of noisy songs, sipping out of the men's glasses, taking the smoke of cigarettes out of the men's mouths, sitting on the men's knees, and even riding astride on the men's arms and shoulders.

I bore these sights as long as I could, making many fruitless appeals to my husband to take me home, and I was just about to leave of myself, being sick of the degradation of my sex, when a kind of rostrum, with an empty chair on top of it, was carried in on the shoulders of a number of men.

This was for the enthronement of the Queen of Beauty, and as it passed round the arena, with the mock judges in paper coronets walking ahead to make their choice, some of the women, lost to all sense of modesty, were shouting "Take me! Take me!"

I felt sure they would take Alma, so I reached forward to get a better view of her, whose face was [illegible] my box; but in that [illegible] her, with the chair still empty, came her to make a move [illegible] my direction and say something to the Judges about "the little lady," which made my husband [illegible] his head and then laugh uproariously.

At the next moment, before I knew what they were doing, six or seven men jumped into my box, lifted me on to the rostrum and placed me in the chair, whereupon the whole noisy company in the theatre broke into wild shouts of saturation and pelted me with flowers and confetti!

If there was any pride there was more mortification in the position to which Alma and my husband had exposed me, for as I was being carried round the arena, with the rain of foaming faces below me, all screaming out of their hot and open mouths, I heard the men cry

"Bella Signorina

"Not so serious, Mademoiselle!"

It would do no good to say what memories of other scenes flashed back on my mind as I was being borne along in the mad procession. I felt as if it would last for ever but it came to an end at length, and [illegible] as I was released, I begged my husband again to take me home, and when he said, "Not yet; we'll all be going by-and-by," I stole away by myself, found a cab, and drove back to the hotel.

WHAT THE MAID SAW

The day was dawning as I passed through the silent streets, and when I reached my room, and pulled down my dark green blinds, the bell of the Capuchin monastery in the Via Veneto was ringing and the monks were saying the first of their offices.

I must have been some time in bed, hiding my hot face in the bedclothes, when Price, my maid, came in to sponge me, not having seen me come back alone. The pain of the woman's scrutiny was more than I could bear at that moment, so I tried to dismiss her, but I could not get her to go, and at last she said:

"If you please, my lady, I want to say something."

I gave her no encouragement, yet she continued

"I daresay it's no use but my place is worth but I'm bound to my fit."

Still I said nothing, for she went on

"[illegible] up and Madame have no [illegible] They came back half an hour ago. And just now [illegible] I saw his [illegible] coming out of [illegible]'s [illegible]

"Go away, please go away," I cried in the fierce agony of my shame, and she went out at last, closing the door noisily behind her.

We did not go next day to Benediction at the Reverend Mother's church. But late that same night, when it was quite dark, I crept out of my room into the noisy streets, hardly knowing where my footsteps were leading me, until I found myself in the piazza of the convent of the Sacred Heart.

It was quiet enough there. Only the Carabinieri were walking on the paved way with measured steps, and the bell of the Trinita [illegible] was slowly ringing under the silent stars. I could see the light on the Pope's [illegible] at the Vatican and hear the [illegible] of St. Peter's striking 9 o'clock.

There were lights in the windows of some of the dormitories, and by this I knew that the younger children, the children of the Infant Jesus, were going to bed. There was a light, too, in the large window of the church, and that told me that the bigger girls were saying their night prayers.

Creeping close to the convent wall I heard the girls' voices rising and falling, and then through the closed door of the church came the muffled sound of their evening hymn—

"Ave maris stella
Dig Mater Alma——"

I did not know why I was putting myself wilfully to this bitter pain—the pain of remembering the happy years in which I myself was a girl singing so, and then [illegible] myself that other girls were there now who knew nothing of me.

I thought of the Reverend Mother, and then of my own mother, my saint, my angel, who had told me to think of her when I sang that hymn; and then I remembered where I was and what had happened to me.

"Virgin of all virgins,
To thy shelter take me."

I felt like an outcast. A sudden sensation came into my throat and I dropped to my knees in the darkness. I thought I was broken-hearted!

Forty-ninth Chapter

NOT long after that we left Italy on our return to England. We were to reach home by easy stages so as to see some of the great capitals of Europe, but I had no interest in the journey.

Our first stay was at Monte Carlo, that sweet garden of the Mediterranean which God seems to smile upon and man to curse.

If I had been allowed to contemplate the beautiful spectacle of nature I think I could have been content, but Alma, with her honeyed and insincere words, took me to the Casino on the usual plea of keeping her in countenance.

I hated the place, from the first with its stale air, its chink of louis [illegible] its [illegible] of the croupiers, its strained faces about the tables, and its general atmosphere of wasted hopes and fears and heedless misery and despair.

As often as I could I crept out to look at the flower fetes in the streets, or to climb the hill of La Turbie and think I was on my native rocks with Martin Conrad, or even to sit in my room and watch the poor wounded pigeons from the pigeon-traps as they tumbled and ducked into the sea after the shots fired, by cruel and unsportsmanlike sportsmen, from the rifle range below.

In Monte Carlo my husband's vice seemed to me to grow rank and fast. The gambling fever took complete possession of him. At first he won and then he drank heavily, but afterwards he lost and then his nature became still more ugly and repulsive.

One evening towards 8 o'clock I was in my room, trying to comfort a broken-winged pigeon which had come floundering through the open window, when my husband entered with wild eyes.

"The reds coming up at all the tables," he cried breathlessly. "Give me some money, quick!"

I told him I had no money except the few gold pieces in my purse.

"You've a cheque book—give me a cheque, then."

I told him that even if I gave him a cheque he could not cash it that night, the banks being closed

"The jewellers are open though, and you have jewels, haven't you? Stop fooling with that creature and let me have some of them to pawn."

POINTED TO JEWELS

The situation was too abject for discussion, so I pointed to the drawer in which my jewels were kept, and he tore it open, took what he wanted and went out hurriedly without more words.

After that I saw no more of him for two days, when with black rings about his eyes he came in to say he must leave "this accursed place" immediately or we should all be ruined.

Our last stopping place was Paris, and in my ignorance of the great French capital which has done so much for the world I thought it must be the sink of every kind of corruption.

We put up at a well-known hotel in the Champs Elysees and there (as well as in the cafes in the day and at the races at Longchamps on Sundays) we met the same people again most of them English and Americans on their way home after the Winter. It seemed to me strange that there should be so many men and women in the world with nothing to do, merely loafing round it like trampe—the richest being the idlest, and the idlest the most immoral.

My husband knew many Frenchmen of the upper classes, and I think he spent several hours every day at their clubs, but (perhaps at Alma's instigation) he made no [illegible] through the filth of Paris by night.

"It will be lots of fun," said Alma. "And then who is to know us in places like those?"

I tolerated this for a little while, and then refused to be dragged around any longer as a cloak for Alma's pleasures. Telling myself that if I continued to share my husband's habits of life, for any reason or under any pretext, I should become like him, and my soul would rot inch by inch, I resolved to be clean in my own eyes and to resist the contaminations of his company.

To Be Continued Tomorrow.

Bang! Goes Resolution No. 1

Here's to the maiden of bashful fifteen,
Now to the widow of fifty;
Here's to the flaunting, extravagant queen,
And here's to the housewife that's thrifty.
Let the toast pass,
Drink to the lass;
I'll warrant she'll prove an excuse for the glass.

Here's to the charmer whose dimples we prize,
Now to the damsel with none, sir;
Here's to the girl with a pair of blue eyes,
And now to the nymph with but one, sir.
Let the toast pass,
Drink to the lass;
I'll warrant she'll prove an excuse for the glass.

Here's to the maid with a bosom of snow,
Now to her that's as brown as a berry;
Here's to the wife with a face full of woe,
And now to the damsel that's merry.
Let the toast pass,
Drink to the lass;
I'll warrant she'll prove an excuse for the glass.

For let her be clumsy or let her be slim,
Young or ancient, I care not a feather;
So fill up a bumper, nay, fill to the brim,
And let us e'en toast 'em together.
LET THE TOAST PASS,
DRINK TO THE LASS;
I'LL WARRAN'T SHE'LL PROVE AN EXCUSE FOR THE GLASS!

SO Love found him singing even the first day after New Year—his first and soberest resolution all gone to pot! For the biggest one he made, the one he pounded the table on, the one he confided to his dog and crossed his heart on, and signed his name to—was: "This year I am companion with dog and man. Girls are taboo! Not a feminine creature, with her coaxing ways, her soft eyes, will I have about me, or will I even turn my head to look on. Not even the one who makes pies like a dream (and I love pie); not even the one who listens to all the clever things I have to say; not ONE—may the kobolds get her! For this year past she's scratched and nicked the gloss of my heart something shameful.

"So you, you baby-Year-nineteen-fourteen, GIRLS ARE TABOO!" and Billy sighed, "Safe, old man, on your wisest New Year's Resolution."

But resolutions are precious vessels that break if you snap your finger at 'em. And now, so soon—Love finds Billy so—singing this song—at the top of the picture—in praise of womankind; planted among the girls!

Love tip-toed along with this most precious Resolution; he slid carefully, eyes ahead, over the slippery ice of human Perseverance.

"Saints save us!" he whispered—and then he flipped his pink feet into the air and broke it!

"His first Resolution gone!" he remarked over the pieces. "But it was a mostest delicate one anyhow—I couldn't get far with it!"

True Story of Boston's Little Lost Sister Who Found Herself

By JANET WRIGHT

But at what I saw then, the mysterious visitor of the morning was forgotten; for in the doorway Janet appeared—behind her, Ralph. And upon their faces were smiles of the most beatific happiness, so that my poor tortured nerves gave way, and I sank upon the floor in the hall and "boo-hooed into my bent white kid gloves till Janet and Ralph, one on each side, half carried me into the living room and made me comfortable upon the couch.

They were laughing as though it were all the greatest joke in the world. And after I had had my cry out, I too, began to laugh—first hysterically—at last with a warm glow of mother pride and mother love in my heart. And I realized that I had a new daughter. For this was not the same Janet—this gay-eyed, red-cheeked, dimpling, laughing girl, whose brown hair seemed to have caught the infection, so that it seemed fairly to shimmer with wonderful happiness.

"You've forgiven me, haven't you, mother? Haven't you?" she was crying over and over when at last I gathered myself sufficiently to listen to what she was saying.

This serial is written in the form of the life story of a country girl who fell victim to conditions in Boston. The names used are all fictitious, but no character appears in the serial that is not taken from real life. No important incident occurs which has not actually happened in Boston within five years. And the conditions portrayed are minimized, rather than exaggerated.

The serial is offered as a picture of the lives of Boston's Little Lost Sisters. It is designed to shed some light on causes underlying the terrible conditions of the city; and it is hoped some remedies may be suggested.

The facts upon which the serial is based were given to the AMERICAN by one of Boston's best informed social workers, who vouches for every statement. The serial is in the form of the life story of JANET WRIGHT—one of the Little Lost Sisters who found herself—and is told by herself.

"Forgiven—Oh, Janet, honey, I'm so glad to see you," I cried. And I caught her in my arms, and she threw her arms about my neck and we wept and laughed into each other's necks so that Ralph, I have no doubt, felt completely ostracized and out of it. When this occurred to me, I held Janet away and commanded them both to tell me all about it.

It was all ridiculously simple, when I heard the story. They were deeply in love with each other—had been for months. Janet, though I, her mother, had never guessed it, was a silly little creature with a head ful of romance, and in our dingy old boarding house all her life she had been weaving cobweb fancies of a wonderful beauty and variety.

Partly because of this—partly because of the lack of a proper confidence between us, she had never been able to bring herself to tell me all about it. In a way, she was afraid to broach the matter; and on the other hand she loved to hug her secret to her bosom and gloat over it—"with no one knowing but just us two, mother—just Ralph and I." And at that I felt for the first time the pang a mother knows when her daughter suddenly finds there is another world beside that of which her mother is the sun and centre.

"And so we eloped," she declared, delightedly. "Ralph had had the license for weeks and our plans were all made and we just went and got married, and we're staying at the Blank." She named the hotel where I had found their names. "We were going to leave today—we're going to Niagara Falls—but I said I just had to come and tell you all about it."

"Going to leave me—poor old me?" I said jokingly. And then young Hawes spoke up:

"It's only for a little while," he explained eagerly. "I'm not really taking her away, Mis' Wright. You know — I haven't any father and mother, and you will always have to be a mother to us—won't she, Janet?"

Janet eagerly affirmed this — then boasted to me:

"Just think, Ralph hasn't got a soul. Do you wonder he was awfully lonesome. And he's doing so wonderfully in the store. They've made him an assistant advertising something or other and he gets ever so much money—don't you Ralph."

"Oh, I'm doing all right—" he began. When upon our sore there came the clanger of the front door bell, and in silence we stared at each other for a moment, not understanding. While we waited, the maid had answered. I heard her open the front door.

The New Corset For Fat Women

The new corset designed to coerce overfat ladies into the new style gowns has three sets of strings. When you have one set adjusted you still have two more struggles left. Think of that—and shudder.

To escape this fate, fat ladies should lose no time in securing one of the large cases of Marmola Prescription Tablets—that druggists and the Marmola Company, Detroit, Mich., sell for 75 cents. One of these tablets taken after each meal and at bedtime for a short while will make you independent of the new corset. Being made in strict accordance with the famous Marmola Prescription, these pleasant little standbys of the overfat are perfectly harmless, except to the fat itself, which they set inexorably do away with at the rate of a pound a day, and they are also the most economical and least restrictive means for reducing fat one could adopt, as they get results without interfering either with one's every day tastes or methods of diet, home or general.

Latest in Today's Stock Markets

By W. H. ROSS, Financial Editor.

Stocks were lower this afternoon after having been irregular from the start. Price changes had been small all the morning and at noontime, so far as usual leaders were concerned. The supply had been large enough at every rise to cause a reaction. Traders were eager to profit. In the money market time rates had an easier tendency, loans for six months at 3¾ per cent. being reported.

In the New York stock market afternoon declines included Canadian Pacific ⅝, Southern Pacific ⅝, Missouri Pacific ½, Lehigh Valley ¼, New Haven ½, Baltimore & Ohio ⅝, Union Pacific ½, American Telephone ⅜ and American Smelting ⅜. Among gains were Steel ⅛ and American ⅛. There was not much business in Rock Island issues. Reading and Amalgamated were unchanged.

In Boston Osceola was up 1⅝, Mohawk ½, Granby ⅜, and Shoe common ⅝, while American Telephone had receded ⅜ and Boston & Maine ½. New Haven was unchanged, as was United Fruit. Trading had become dull here.

PRICES WERE IRREGULAR.

At the opening in New York the undertone was firm and although prices were irregular the market appeared to have a good deal of stability. Bears found that pressure was stubbornly resisted and that it was hard to force stocks down. A number of specialties made good gains. General Motors, Colorado Fuel and Studebaker advancing more than a point. Woolworth rose three, because of predictions as to what would be reported in the way of net earnings for 1913. The business of this corporation increased about 10 per cent. last year. Leaders moved within a small price range and conditions affecting them showed no change over night.

RALLY CAUSED SELLING.

At the end of a half hour prices averaged above finals for Wednesday and the rise induced selling on considerable scale. The demand was not equal to the increase in supply and recessions were the rule. Trading was not very active, measured by the recent standard, and first hour sales were around 100,000 shares. In the last half of the forenoon the tone became heavy, the most important issues yielding fractionally. Mexican Petroleum declined more than a point. Steel was up and down during the morning, but neither its gains nor losses were large. It obtained support because of trade reports, the Iron Age saying: "Iron and steel markets have gained ground in the past week. January buying was so large and the behavior of prices so satisfactory that with the opening of February producers in several finished lines have announced advances of $1 a ton."

PRICE TREND ABROAD.

What Europeans have heard from this side has led them to expect a revival of business in this country and they have been buying American stocks with more confidence on the whole than has been shown in markets here. In London this afternoon Americans were showing small gains with few exceptions. They were irregular at the close, owing to the wavering of the list in New York.

By noon in the latter market there was no breadth to fluctuations and if most active issues were lower their losses, like advances by others, averaged small. Business was largely professional, the demand for stocks on the part of the public having lessened. Outsiders seem to be waiting for the market to become more definite as to trend. Bears have found it very difficult of late to shake out stocks. That was the situation today.

COPPERS FIRM HERE.

In the Boston market interest in copper issues, which have long been passively regarded by the public, did not wane, and business in them had the most significance when the local market opened. It was firmer in early trading than the one in New York. In the second hour most active stocks declined a little, and by noon the list was irregular and the tone not so good. But business had had fair breadth. Transactions on the Boston Stock Exchange on Wednesday totalled nearly 60,000. It was the busiest day in that respect in more than a year.

Metal market news did not have much effect upon securities, it detailing no change of importance. Warrants weakened in London. It is generally believed that the Producers' Association will report on Monday that during January metal stocks increased from 10,000,000 to 15,000,000 pounds.

FINANCIAL NEWS IN BRIEF.

The London copper warrants market was eased off during the morning, spot being off 3s. 9d. and futures 2s. 6d. at noon. At the close they were each 12s. 6d. lower.

The Bank of Germany, as was expected, has reduced its minimum rate of discount from 4½ to 4 per cent. The Bank of England's rate remained unchanged.

The net income of the F. W. Woolworth Company for 1913 amounted to more than $6,000,000 and there will be a balance of at least 10 per cent. on common stock after preferred dividends have been paid.

FINANCE AND BUSINESS FACT AND COMMENT

By B. C. FORBES, Business Editor.

Are Americans dishonest?

* * *

That question was put to me this week by a man of prominence.

* * *

He says they are.

* * *

Are they?

* * *

What do you think—if you have ever stopped to think about it?

* * *

Let me present the case in the form of a discussion:

"Everybody (class) in the country is dishonest, starting at the government itself."

"How do you make out that the government is dishonest?"

"In a hundred ways."

"Specify, please."

* * *

"Well, the government's whole pension system, as every one knows, is honeycombed with fraud. Taxpayers are cheated out of millions of dollars by bogus pension payments every year. That is one instance. Then is it not true, as the railroads have shown, that the government is absolutely dishonest in compelling them to carry all the new parcel post traffic without proper remuneration? That is another glaring case. Then the new income tax compels trust companies and other institutions to act as tax collectors without compensation, although the cost entailed is very great. Isn't that dishonest? Nobody should be forced to work without reward."

* * *

"And the railroads, have they been dishonest?"

* * *

"Now, don't make me laugh! You know very well they have. They bought up legislators wholesale, as every schoolboy knows. Their system of secret rebates was a species of dishonesty. And that only touches the fringe of their malpractices."

* * *

* * *

"Take, next, our trusts and other huge corporations. They were conceived in greed and organized with rank dishonesty. The people were fooled and cheated at every turn. Millions of dollars were extracted unfairly from the pockets of the public by so-called high financiers—low financiers I would call them. The courts have shown up a few of these gigantic plundering machines, starting with the great Havemeyer of the Sugar Trust.

* * *

"Any more?"

* * *

"I haven't half finished. I need not discuss the flim-flamming practiced by Wall Street gentlemen, from Morgan down. The stock exchange has been used—abused, rather—as a money-making machine for 'insiders' in all sorts of corporations. The profits filched by big bankers in questionable reorganizations and the like have made hundreds millionaires."

* * *

"But are the little fellows always honest?"

* * *

"Certainly not. The little bankers have robbed the poor quite as successfully as the big ones did. You have only to read the newspapers to learn that."

* * *

"You seem to be specially down on bankers and financiers."

* * *

"I'm not. Other classes are just as bad, if not worse. The corner grocer goes in for more cheating than the big trust. So does the butcher, the green grocer, the chemist and all the lot of them. The record of short-weights is awful. The amount of impure food foisted upon the helpless public is deplorable. And watered milk has not been an unknown quality. Adulteration of every imaginable kind has been practiced, as we all know."

* * *

"Have you not yet reached the end of the line?"

* * *

"No, I haven't touched labor yet. It is as dishonest as the rest. Why, some of the unions forbid their members to give a full day's work, and they will stop at nothing to ruin employers and employes alike who will not do their bidding. How many workers delight to 'get the better of the boss' by not working when the boss isn't around? And how many of those who have the chance accept bribes from all sorts of tradespeople to let them impose upon their employers? And did you ever stop to think how many people would steal a ride on a street car is they could get away with it? As for swearing off taxes—whee-y! Our multi-millionaires set the example and others follow suit. By reading the tax list of New York you would never guess there were ten millionaires in the city."

The Governor Is Right—A Constitutional Convention Is Imperatively Needed

The Committee on Constitutional Amendments of the Legislature considered yesterday the Governor's recommendation for the holding of a Constitutional Convention. The words by which the Governor recommends a Constitutional Convention contain a powerful argument in favor of the proposition.

The AMERICAN quotes the Governor's words:

It has been more than half a century since the people of Massachusetts have considered their Constitution as a whole for the purpose of revising it and making it consistent with the conditions of the day. The strong public demand for certain changes in our Constitution compels the Legislature, year after year, to consider the same proposals for its amendment. The time of committees and of the Legislature itself is consumed, the length of the session is extended and the normal business of legislation is embarrassed by these constantly recurring demands. The failure of the Legislature to act on them only incites their advocates to more vigorous insistence, and tends to foment distrust of our representative government among a large body of intelligent, patriotic citizens.

Therefore, I recommend that the Legislature cause to be assembled, with the consent of the electorate, a body of citizens, who shall be selected without party designation, to formulate amendments to our Constitution, which, submitted to the voters of the State, will tend to settle otherwise irrepressible controversies, and will make our Constitution conform more nearly to the needs and to the public opinion of the day.

In half a century conditions change so greatly that human beings cannot construct a form of government which does not need to change a little in its form in order to preserve its spirit by meeting the altered conditions. The Governor continues:

The following proposals I suggest as the most persistently pressing for constitutional authority:

1—The initiative, the referendum and the recall of elective officers.

2—Biennial elections.

3—The abolition of the Executive Council and enlarging the powers of the Lieutenant-Governor.

4—Woman suffrage.

5—Rights of cities and towns to deal in necessaries of life in times of public distress.

6—Government by majority.

7—The right of the Governor to veto specific items in appropriation bills.

8—Homestead legislation, whereby the Commonwealth may help people of small means to acquire homes of their own.

9—Revision of taxation system.

10—The making of workmen's compensation compulsory.

Let this not be a partisan measure. The Democrats are bound to it by their party pledges. The Progressives are bound to it by its necessity for the changes which they rightly advocate, and the intelligent Republicans are bound to it by considerations of policy and good government.

When We Begin Using Land Under the Oceans

Big Work Ahead for Man, Kind Friends

Copyright, 1914, by the Star Company

There is a great deal of water on this earth, of ours, and a great deal of land underneath it.

All the treasures of these hidden plains are simply put away for our future use, by bountiful nature, as prudent parents put money in the savings bank for their young ones.

Already in Chili they are mining coal under the bed of the Pacific Ocean, and the traveler may ride on electric cars through solid tunnels of coal beneath the waters of the greatest ocean.

The tin mines in Wales extend far out beneath the sea.

Oil wells are worked out beyond the edge of the Pacific Ocean. You may see the oil derricks just off Santa Barbara's surf.

In the bay of San Francisco artesian wells, going through the preliminary depths of salt water, bring the water of fresh submarine springs to the surface.

But these little enterprises are but faint beginnings of the great work that man has to do in exploiting the wealth beneath the waters covering two-thirds of the earth's surface.

This earth will be quite a romantic abode when sub-oceanic exploitation reaches full development, when the great gold mines beneath the waters are indicated simply by latitude and longitude.

Mars, with his huge canals distributing a planet's waters scientifically, will be matched perhaps by our network of tunnels under the water from here to Asia, and by our boring, with the aid of cooling mediums, toward the earth's centre and bringing up metals in a molten state.

Before he finishes with her, man will make old earth know that he is at work "in her midst." He will make the harnessing of a tiny Niagara or the boring of a poor little isthmus seem feeble efforts.

Why an Electric Fan Cannot Drive a Boat by Blowing Wind Against the Sail—Where Ignorance Is Costly.

By GARRETT P. SERVISS

"If an electric fan could be made large enough to throw a sufficient amount of wind to move a small sailboat, and such a fan was placed on the end of a boat with the wind from the fan blowing against the sail on the very boat the fan is on, is it possible that it could move the boat? The argument is that the fan, being on the same boat as the sail, cannot move itself. But as the air detaches itself from the fan and hits the sail, my idea is that it can; provided it has the strength to move the boat. Please give an answer."

This question is worth answering for two reasons. First, because it is a woman who asks it; and second, because it involves a principle of physics that ought to be universally understood, and ignorance of which may lead to the waste of both time and money upon inventions that will not work.

The writer of the question thinks that because the air, as she expresses it, is "detached from" the fan when it starts off to strike the sail, it ought to act like an ordinary wind and push the boat before it. But she would not think so if she reflected that the particles of air driven from the fan resemble a swarm of bullets shot from a gun.

The air particles get their force from the fan as the bullets get theirs from the gun, and just as the gun recoils with a force equal to that which it imparts to the bullets, so the fan, whether driven by electricity or steam or turned by hand, inevitably recoils with the same amount of force that it imparts to the air.

To make clearer the comparison between a stream of bullets from a gun and a stream of wind from an electric fan, imagine a Maxim gun placed at the rear of a boat, and an impenetrable target at the front, and then suppose that the gun should hurl a continuous current of bullets against the target. Anybody can see that the boat would not be driven forward, because the recoil of the gun would constantly force it backward with the same energy with which the bullets, striking the target, forced it ahead.

But if the gun were placed on shore or on another support its stream of bullets, striking the target, would drive the boat forward, because then their effect would be like that of a wind blowing freely across the water and having no connection with anything on the boat.

An ordinary wind is able to drive a boat whose sail is struck because its reaction (that of the wind) is not upon the boat, but upon the great mass of the atmosphere, or upon the earth.

The principle to be remembered, and ignorance or forgetfulness of which has cost the happiness of more than one uneducated inventor's life, is that no mechanical force can be produced without an expenditure of energy precisely equivalent. Never forget that there can be no action without equal reaction, and that if the action takes its origin within the limits of the thing that is acted upon the reaction will also be felt within those same limits.

Your electric fan would drive a toy vessel placed on the deck of your boat, although it would not drive the boat itself. Nothing is to regard to the toy vessel, the breeze from the fan would have an independent origin, like an ordinary wind blowing over a lake, and its reaction would not be upon the toy but upon the boat over whose deck the toy glided.

If you are inside a car and push upon the car you cannot move it, as you could if you stood upon the ground outside and pushed in the first case your action and reaction are both upon the car, but in the second case the action is upon the car and the reaction upon the ground outside. The same thing happens if you suspend a bar above your head and lift yourself by pulling down on it, and afterward put the bar under your feet and try to lift yourself by pulling up on it. You succeed in lifting yourself in the first case, but you fail in the second, because when the bar is under your feet the force of your pull reacts upon your own body and urges it down just as much as up.

GOVERNMENT OR GUGGENHEIMS?

Editor Boston AMERICAN:

Dear Sir—The Alaska problem is easily presented for discussion, for it is a question of the government or Guggenheim—which?

Shall the territory be controlled by its constitutional trustee for the trusts? Shall it be owned by the people or by monopoly? Shall its resources be opened to acquisition and use by the pioneer-prospector and homeseeker or unfairly monopolized by one great syndicate? Shall the government or the Guggenheims control the destiny of Alaska and its people—which?

Some Lucky Poets

By WILLIAM F. KIRK

It's a good thing for Shakespeare he died when he did;
This age is no time for a tragedy kid.
His wonderful dramas, his great, deathless lines,
Would now be rewarded with "Back to the mines!"
I fear that our William, were he to return,
And try with his pen a new bankroll to earn,
Would have to go after it hammer and tongs
By writing some soap ads and popular songs.

It's a good thing for Byron he isn't here now,
With his loose velvet collar and beautiful brow.
If he wrote "Maid of Athens" he'd not hold his job;
'Twould be "Chicken of Athens" or "broiler," or "squab."
The girls were so different in years long ago;
They used to love poets, and now they love dough.
He'd find but few queens he could pat on the head,
So I guess that Lord Byron would better stay dead.

It's a good thing for Burns that he died long ago,
For his dialect now wouldn't have any show.
'Tis true lots of coin by the Scotch has been spent,
But Lauder has got it—and kept every cent.
Tom Moore, too, would starve if he came back to earth,
For the magazine editors shy at real worth.
They were lucky old timers; they wrote and made good
And I don't think they'd want to come back if they could.

When Electricity Will Be as Cheap as Air

By EDGAR LUCIEN LARKIN

Q.—"Is the prophecy that 'cent the rounds' about twenty years ago, that some way of 'tapping nature,' and thus securing unlimited supplies of electricity from air or from space, coming true?"

A.—The nearest approach to the great work of tapping nature's unlimited store of electricity is the act of allowing irrigating streams from high mountains to turn turbine generators over and over again in different power plants along down the sides of the mountains, and then, after securing all mechanical work of gravitation, secure growing work in the growth of food plants. This is the height at present of human skill in the work of "tapping nature."

Windmills turning armatures is another way of tapping. And the capture of water in tides, using the force of outflow, is still another. We still have the dynamos with us; we must turn armatures with their polar fields of magnetic lines.

We must use running water or flowing winds to tap nature; or burn carbon under boilers, which is too expensive and prosaic to be called the high art of tapping, as one would turn a faucet.

I suppose my correspondent means just tapping a free supply. This auspicious event has not arrived unless using solar engines is tapping. Heat reflected by mirrors directly from the noonday sun upon boilers has been made to generate steam and turn armatures.

Another way of tapping is to allow the sun to shine on thermo-electric piles, unions of ends of bars of unlike metals.

What my friend evidently wants is electricity as cheap as air, water and sunlight. This really is the dream of electricians. Since nothing else exists but electrons, and these are electricity, it does seem that we ought to get all we want for nothing by merely taking or tapping the supply. But Edison, Thompson, Rutherford and Tesla, and Steinmetz have not blazed the way into this unknown problem of the ages.

I have no doubt that man will make this conquest; for have I not declared constantly during forty-six years that the mind phasing in man is illimitable?

Looking Backward—Answer All the Phantoms of the Past When They Arise, but Turn Your Face to the Future.

By ELLA WHEELER WILCOX

Copyright, 1914, by the Star Company

Retrospection and introspection seem to come at this season. We love to look backward, to recall old times, old scenes and old faces. The tendency of the human heart, at this time of year, is to spread the table of memory with mirrors, and to feast upon melancholy thoughts.

We cannot expect hearts that are bleeding with recent wounds to feel any joy in this season.

But we can urge those who mourn for the dead to remember the living and cover the bleeding wound, when possible, from sight.

A mother who has lost one child need not shadow those remaining, who are too young to feel sorrow so deeply, by darkening the home and refusing to think or talk of anything but the departed dear one.

Let her ask herself if that dear one would want her loss deplored in such a manner?

Would she be happy in her spirit-realm among the angelic hosts, if she knew her earth home was shrouded in darkness, and that all those she loved on earth were turning their eyes away from the light and thinking only of the grave?

Other sorrows besides death show their faces to the eyes of the soul at this season.

Old Ambitions, old Friendships, old Loves, old Dreams, that have been too fragile to stand the wear and tear of the years, come forth from the grave of the past and confront us.

The old Ambition sneers perhaps because we turned away before it was attained. The old Friendship whispers "Faithless;" the old Love "Fickle;" the old Dream sighs, "Why did you awaken?"

Each must be answered and sent back to its grave.

To the old Ambition we must answer, "You led to the wrong path for my best development. My failure has taught me more than would you, had I attained you. I am going forth to a greater goal."

To the old Friendship, "You were not strong enough to hold me. Nothing that is of absolute worth to the soul is ever lost. I was not faithless; I only found my path led in other directions."

To the old Love, "I was not fickle. You were only a prairie fire, and I fled to escape being devoured to you. The light you cast upon my way was not from the Great Source."

To the old Dream, "I was weary with sleep. So I awoke. To know is better than to dream."

And, having answered all the phantoms and bid them adieu, then we must turn faces to the Spirit of the Coming Days and greet the retinue of attendants about us.

Courage, Hope, New Ambitions, New Truths, New Thoughts, New Resolves, Persistence and Patience—having greeted them all and bid them welcome, we must walk forth into the sunlight, believing absolutely in the future, and refusing to look backward.

No past was ever so great and wonderful as any future may be.

Publicity the Foe of the "White Slavers"

By REV. C. F. AKED, D. D.

Another victory has been won for public decency. What New York has not been able to do San Francisco has done. The ban placed upon the moving picture films, entitled "The Inside of the White Slave Traffic," has been lifted by the refusal of a police judge to sustain the Board of Censors. And public morality is the gainer.

In New York the matter is still before the courts. In San Francisco the Court held that it is not a matter in which even expert opinion can be allowed a hearing. Judge Deasy ruled that the question is one for the determination of the Court. He had seen the pictures, and his judgment was that they are not, as charged, "obscene, indecent or immoral," or "offensive to the moral sense." The exhibition, therefore, has right of way.

On the part of the San Francisco judge this dismissal of the charge is the most notable in view of his own personal objection to the pictures. He stated that he did not like them; that if he had daughters he should not wish them to see the play; that he was opposed to such free discussion of the matters with which they deal.

Then he went on to declare that his personal view was not the criterion. He had to judge according to the law. He could not find that the exhibition violated the city ordinance under which proceedings had been taken.

All this has interest everywhere in America.

• • •

There is intellectual immodesty of a very high degree on the part of persons of limited attainments and restricted experience who declare than an exhibition indorsed by some of the best intellects in America is "obscene, indecent, immoral and offensive to the moral sense." This is not simply the language of the city ordinance. The president of the Board of Censors was almost unnecessarily offensive in his denunciation of the pictures.

Against this off-hand judgment which the court has refused to sustain may be set the names of persons of national prominence, women and men, who, having no earthly interest in the moving picture business, are yet fighting for the right of a theatre to place on exhibition "The Inside of the White Slave Traffic."

It is clear that the police judge before whom the case was tried in San Francisco has prevented the censors making the city and its people ridiculous.

The total net result of opposition to these pictures is to multiply by about 1,000 the number of persons who now mean to see them. In Philadelphia one theatre cannot begin to cope with the crowds clamoring for admission. A second theatre has been hired for the overflow. On the one day in which the pictures were shown in San Francisco 11,700 persons paid to see them.

The men and women of our time are determined that light shall be let into the dark places of city life, full of the habitations of cruelty yet. There may be healing in publicity. At least, the evil shall not be allowed to flourish unassailed in the darkness. About this minds are made up. The old, silly hypocritical prudery is doomed.

The white slaver is not going to be allowed to hide in the darkness forever. And good men and women, who do not realize what they are doing when they try to suppress discussion will soon find that "there is nothing to do but quit."

The "First Settler" in the Universe

By REV. THOMAS B. GREGORY

One hundred and ten years ago John Dalton, the English Quaker-Scientist, wrote a letter to his brother, in which he informed him that he had "got into a track that had not been much trod before." That "track" led Dalton, a little later, to the point where he was able to announce to the world his discovery of the Atomic Theory of Chemistry—a theory which linked together and reduced to order and simplicity the previously disconnected and unexplained phenomena of chemical combinations.

The very first person, so far as we know, to talk about Atoms was the old Greek philosopher Democritus, who lived some four hundred years before the birth of Christ. Democritus maintained that all things were composed of invisible, intangible and indivisible particles, which, by reason of their various configurations and combinations, gave rise to the variety of forms that make up the visible universe. The Atoms, Democritus claimed, are self-existent and eternal.

In the Atom we have, then, the pioneer fact. It is the oldest inhabitant, the very, very "First Settler" in the universe.

But what is this Atom, out of the magical potentiality of which all forms are realized? The question cannot be answered. The authorities tell us that the smallest organized particle visible under the microscope contains more than two millions of Atoms.
